Dreaming

By J. Lawrence Burkholder

J. Lawrence Burkholder is president of Goshen College.

There are ancient and modern theories according to which dreams reveal what lies beneath the surface. In the Old Testament God appears to his servants in dreams and in more recent times the "unconscious" is supposed to surface in dreams.

Dream Day at Goshen (Oct. 31, 1975) was not quite as mystical as the term would suggest but it was a most significant opportunity for faculty, students and friends to sit down together and to think about the future. The fundamental question was, "What should Goshen College be like in 1985?" Morning sessions were oriented around departmental planning and afternoon sessions centered upon the larger philosophical, religious and social issues.

Two general conclusions

If dreaming is an indication of character, several conclusions may be drawn about how faculty and students view Goshen College. One conclusion concerns academic integrity. At a time when enrollment pressures tend to inflate the educational process by lowering standards, introducing gimmicks and doing the "in thing," Goshen students and faculty have come down strongly in favor of maintaining high academic standards.

When graduates leave Goshen they deserve the right to look back upon their experience as an achievement. They desire to feel qualified to perform their professional duties and to cope with graduate school requirements. In a culture which fosters instant gratification, materialism, fadism and anti-intellectualism which produces high school graduates who cannot write, high academic goals imply an educational non-conformity running parallel to religious non-conformity.

Another conclusion one may draw from Dream Day is the desire of the faculty and students to keep in close touch with the churches. The term of "center" is being used increasingly to suggest that the college is to be a place to which and from which church people go in fulfilling the mission of the church. At the present time Goshen is examining a new program of continuing education in which faculty would teach short courses on a variety of subjects throughout the churches. This would be in addition to the significant work of the Center for Discipleship.

A doctrinal statement from the faculty

Another conclusion one may draw lies in the area of ideology. Underneath any vital organization or movement is an ideology. For a Christian college a most important component is its faith. Faith is, of course, expressed in many ways — most importantly in life. But a written statement of faith also has its place.

During the past two years the faculty has worked on a statement. After many meetings, it was accepted unanimously as an indication of where the faculty stands. It is not a complete confession in the sense that it could replace the accepted confessions of the churches. Rather it is an expression of faith appropriate to the particular function of a college within the total mission of the church. The statement, which is published below, went through about five revisions and will undoubtedly be changed from time to time as new convictions press themselves upon the consciousness of the college community.

The fact that a faculty consisting of men and women in diverse fields of study can agree on a doctrinal statement of this kind is an indication of unity and strength. This is an enviable basis upon which to build at a time of cultural crises when morality is eroding, family ties are disintegrating, authority is undermined, democracy is being threatened and churches are being fragmented. Despite the disturbing trend of the time, Goshen is confident of the future. Its confidence is based more upon the strength of values and firm belief than cultural signs of progress.

Statement of Christian commitment for Goshen College faculty

Adopted October 30, 1975

I. Statement of Purpose

Goshen College, a liberal arts educational center for the transmission, enrichment, enlargement, and embodiment of the Believers Church vision, seeks to develop informed, articulate, sensitive, responsible, Christian disciples.

II. Affirmations

The governing board and faculty of Goshen College view the college as an educational institution giving concrete expression to their faith in God and the Christian mission of the Mennonite Church in the world. They affirm the doctrine and practice of the Mennonite Church as interpreted by the Mennonite General Assembly and formulated in such documents as the 1963 Mennonite Confession of Faith.

The Anabaptist-Mennonite tradition of biblical faith provides the theological emphases that give Goshen College its distinctive character. While the fullness of the Gospel of Jesus Christ can never be summarized in brief statements, we offer the following affirmations as guidelines for the expression of our faith.

First, we acknowledge the reality of God the creator of all things, transcendent source of power in the universe, the sovereign ruler of all peoples.

Second, we acknowledge Jesus Christ as Son of God, as Lord of Life, and as Savior from the bondage of sin. Through His life, death, and resurrection, the Kingdom of God has been inaugurated and through the Spirit His rule extends over all powers and authorities. We accept the Great Commission as a call to bring the message of our risen Lord to all the world so that all people might be saved.

Third, we affirm the Believers Church as defining both the shape and mission of the church. Central to this view are such emphases as voluntarism, fellowship, sharing, discernment, discipline, mission, evangelism, celebration. The character of the Believers Church is that of a peoplehood which transcends and overcomes cultural, national, racial and ethnic boundaries.

Fourth, we understand the Christian life as a life of discipleship, a personal response of faith and obedience to the grace of God which frees us from sin. We believe that the call to discipleship leads to a life of holiness, witness, and service to humanity in the spirit and power of Jesus.

Fifth, we understand that the "good news," the Gospel of the Kingdom, includes peacemaking, evangelism, love, and social justice in a world characterized by violence, oppression, and injustice. We are committed to healing and hope for all people everywhere; we seek especially to be conscious of the needs of minority groups and disadvantaged people.

III. Expressions

The Goshen College program seeks to give expression to the above affirmations. The following are some ways in which this occurs:

1. Christian faith is not expressed exclusively in formal religious activities at Goshen. Our objective is to have faith permeate the entire life of the campus. We seek to promote responsibility for each other through active participation in congregations and small groups for worship, fellowship, and mutual caring.

2. Students at Goshen College become acquainted with the Scriptures and reality of the Believers Church through the curriculum and through their involvement in the religious life of the campus in chapel and convocation assemblies. The faculty, the administration, and many students think of themselves as a vital part of the total mission of the church. They seek to become involved on many levels in the educational, missionary, publishing, and service organization and administration of the church.

3. The service ideal is expressed in the curriculum through an international education requirement for graduation and by student field experiences. There are numerous voluntary service projects in which faculty, students and alumni are involved.

4. The College endeavors to serve as a center for study, renewal, and reformation of the Christian tradition and practice. The Center for Discipleship, Mennonite Historical Library, and various publications, including the Mennonite Quarterly Review, illustrate this commitment.

5. In response to injustice and dishonesty, faculty and students seek to exercise responsibility to indicate what is felt to be wrong in human affairs, and to propose constructive alternatives.

6. We believe that Christian discipleship involves a commitment to a style of life which focuses on integrity, simplicity, interdependence, and mutual caring. Faculty members are expected to be exemplars of these ideals which are spelled out further in the campus document entitled "Standards for Guiding Our Life Together."

The lack of personnel for church agencies is distressing

A profile of Tom Rutschman

About the cover: Left to right are Dick and Tom Rutschman and Karen Dueck, on the wrong path in the Darien jungle in Colombia. Their trek across South America and Central America in the summer of 1974 included two weeks of wandering in the jungle. It is a wonder they are alive today.

Tom Rutschman, a major in foreign languages, is preparing to teach high school Spanish and French. He has lived in Colombia, Uruguay, the United States and Belgium. Before enrolling at Goshen College, he studied two years at Freeman Junior College. He is as comfortable speaking Spanish as English.

Rutschman is one of the unusual students at Goshen this year. For one thing, he is a veteran of 2 1/2 years of Mennonite Central Committee voluntary service work at Brussels, Belgium. For another, he was a member of MCC's five-person education team to visit numerous church high schools and colleges in an intensive three-month period on the occasion of the end of the draft; purpose of the deputation was to inspire young Mennos to volunteer for service.

Survived the jungle

Third, he and two other young persons were lost in the dense Colombian-Panamanian jungle for two weeks in the summer of 1974 — and lived to tell about it. They were fortunate not to encounter black panthers, mountain lions and poisonous snakes; they were also untouched by blood-sucking rabies-carrying vampire bats and a yellow fever epidemic. They met the Choco Indians who had earlier been touched by Missionary Jake Loewen but were now missionaries themselves. They swam shark-infested rivers and were victims of bribery in Panama. Their adventures and experiences would fill a small book.

Tom's life to date has contained a number of elements of risk and adventure. But through it all, he has a vision of Christian service, regardless of how overworked and trite those two words have become.

His service assignment in Belgium, his one semester of seminary studies in Uruguay before the Montevideo Theological Seminary closed, and his travels by blistered feet, bus, and dugout canoe across South and Central America have given him the perspective of a mature, older person that belie his 23 years.

Service, yes, but not because of the draft

Tom is emphatic when he says, "The Christian in the United States today should not allow the lottery number of the draft system to decide whether Christian service is an option. The Christian must make his own decisions, based on the claims of Jesus. The lack of personnel for church agencies is distressing. Has it happened because the draft isn't there to prod our young persons into service?

"Sure, there are problems in service. But there are many significant, positive things. For me in Belgium, there were trips and activities with the international students, involvement with the Spanish-American church, leading Bible studies, helping to provide housing for students from the Middle East, Africa and South America in an unwelcome Europe, and teaching contemporary songs to youth. Such things are the extraordinary rewards for one who will respond to the occasion of the moment."

Choosing a college to finish

After one year at Freeman Junior College, Tom went to Goshen for a summer because of good employment prospects in the mobile home industry. The College let him live in off-campus housing and he became acquainted with a few faculty persons. But he was unimpressed with the lifestyles of some of the students, he recalls.

It is a fact that Tom continued to look over the products of the various colleges during his MCC assignment. He wanted a place to complete his college after service. In Brussels he became acquainted with TAP-ers (Teachers Abroad Program volunteers under MCC) who studied in language school on their way to their destinations. "Of all the persons I met, I felt the kids from GC had a different outlook on life, and I began to feel positive toward Goshen."

And on his deputation tour, he found more response and more questions about service at GC than at any other college. It was what he wanted to hear.

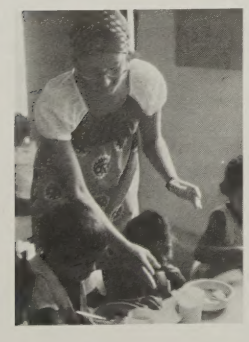
A future not clear

As he looks ahead, his plans are indefinite for 1976. He completed graduation requirements in December and is remaining in the community on a pilot research project. He has accepted an assignment from the Assembly to determine with low-income families what their needs are and how church and social agencies could better meet their needs.

He definitely plans to rejoin his parents, who are preparing national church leaders in Bolivia, for a reunion next summer. In September he may be teaching, or, on the other hand, he may be in seminary if he wins a Rockefeller Fellowship for a trial year of seminary studies.

SST made me want to go back

A profile of Rachel Yoder



In the fight against malnutrition, Rachel helped serve soup, rice and beans to about 100 children six days a week in the noontime feeding program.

"As soon as I left Honduras, I began to think of how I could return. SST (Study-Service Trimester) was too short to get really involved. I enjoyed the country. I loved the people."

Rachel Yoder, a senior from Wooster, Ohio, is enthusiastic about her SST experience. On her seven-week field assignment, she and another student were in community service in Balfate. It was a campo town of about 500 with fishing and coconuts the cash crop. There was no electricity, no running water, no road. She studied by kerosene lamp. She bathed in the river.

The people were beautiful. "I lived with a grandmother, her elder son and two small boys, ages 4 and 5. The small boys slept in my bedroom. I made an effort to get to know my family. I wanted to remember them, and my few weeks with them would be my only chance."

The need for education

A home economics major with special interest in nutrition, Rachel was especially observant of local mothers' needs for information on hygiene and basic nutrition. The children tended to be anemic, malnourished, and hosts for parasites.

Her SST trimester was January to April, 1974. Upon return to the States, she continued her studies at GC. Then Hurricane Fifi hit the Honduran coast in fall, 1974. According to news accounts, Balfate was wiped off the map. But she knew it couldn't be true. Reports trickling back from Honduras indicated need for food, clothes and short-term volunteers. She decided this was her opportunity to offer herself and get "really involved."

Accepted as an exception

The program Rachel volunteered for is managed by the Eastern Mennonite Board of Missions, of Salunga, PA. Normally, the Board discourages short-term volunteers. But because of Rachel's prior knowledge of Honduras and deep interest and because of the immediate need for relief workers, an exception was made. On Jan. 1, 1975, she was on the plane back. She recalls, "So many SST-ers say they want to go back. But the longer you wait, the harder it becomes."

For her eight months, she worked in Tocoa. Co-workers included Carolyn Amstutz, a GC grad. The former Mennonite Church parsonage was converted into a child feeding center and meeting place for nutrition and hygiene classes. Homes were canvassed door-to-door to tell people about the children's noontime feeding program. Children were tested for anemia and given medicine for parasites before admission into the program. MCC clothing was distributed throughout the area. Powdered milk was received from the UN; canned meat, from MCC. (Continued top of Page 4)

Rachel (seated at right) used a Hemoglometer to check each child's hemoglobin count for his/her eligibility in the noontime feeding program. Only children ages 1 to 7 were weighed, measured and checked for anemia.

A Food for Work program was set up and directed by Dennis Hertzler, currently a GC student. The program was an absolute necessity to preserve the people's dignity in such difficult and adverse times, when they have lost everything and are on the brink of despair. In addition, Glenn Stutzman, also at GC now, directed a well-drilling operation.

Mixed emotions about service

Through it all Rachel got a feel for the relief and service outreach of the church. Sometimes she felt like Santa Claus, and saw the folly of giving out food and clothes without requiring something in return. Sometimes she felt depressed and left Tocoa for a day, to rebuild her own inner reserve and gain strength to meet the demands of the days ahead. Many times she sat back and admired the simplicity of life in Honduras, how people are happy with few possessions, how an ordinary thing like a hike can be fun and entertaining.

The ideal of Christian voluntary service, according to Rachel, is: "It helps people be the best they can. It gives them that extra push to become self-reliant, to develop self-respect, to be resourceful."

The danger, as she sees it, is that VS can wear out its welcome. VS workers feel needed and can be tempted to feel indispensable. But they must be sensitive at all times to the long-range interests of the people they are serving. Rachel would pose the question: Would the people be better off, after a period of exposure to VS-ers, if VS left and the people carried on from there?

Back on campus

Upon returning to GC from Honduras, she applied for college credit for her service experience. And she is completing her studies for the vocational home economics certificate to be a high school teacher.

But more foreign service may be in her future. She has found she liked to work in nutrition, and the Latin culture appeals to her.

Three special-purpose gifts are announced

Left to right: William N. Rieth, J. Lawrence Burkholder and Blair A. Rieth announced gifts totaling $30,000 to develop courses in business management. Lee A. Rieth, also of the Rieth-Riley firm, was not present for the picture.

A $46,465 grant for endowment of research in the Turner X-ray Measurements Laboratory . . . $30,000 to develop courses in business management . . . and $8,436 to build the Gateway . . . have been received and allocated at Goshen College.

The grant for the Turner Laboratory is from Basil S. Turner, chairman of the board of CTS Corporation of Elkhart, IN. Turner and his family made the initial gift in 1970 to found the lab, which has the distinction of being the first in the world to develop the science and technology for the growth and evaluation of high-perfection silicon and quartz crystals.

The recent gift is invested to provide annual income for salaries of the researchers, lab upkeep and equipment and supplies. Because it was specified for permanent endowment, it is matched by a like amount by Lilly Endowment, Inc., of Indianapolis.

Business courses

The Rieth-Riley Construction Co., Inc., a major midwest highway and heavy contractor based in Goshen, has made two gifts totaling $30,000. The firm's generosity is making possible the introduction and development of business courses and adult education seminars in business.

In 1974, when the reorganized business curriculum was launched at GC, there were needs to meet the "start up" and inaugural costs. The gifts of the Rieth-Riley firm are "solidifying the program and helping give the financial base it needs," according to J. Lawrence Burkholder, president of the college.

Blair A. Rieth, Lee A. Rieth and William N. Rieth, officers of the 60-year-old firm, presented the gift last fall. Blair Rieth told Burkholder, "There is certainly a satisfaction in doing something that is useful and beneficial to society. Today, society is smothered with so much that is technical and mechanical. The purpose of education, as I see it, is to provide for a balance between making a living and making a life."

A 'mini-park'

The heavily-used mud footpath area between the Administration Building and Science Hall has been transformed into a campus beauty spot, thanks to gifts totaling $8,436 — $1,218 from the Class of 1973, and $7,218 from 47 donors in memory of Genevieve C. Strasser (1894-1974).

Known as the Gateway, the "mini-park" was completed in early December. Flowering shrubs, trees, benches and lights complement the brick walkway. Its design and landscaping features are similar to that of Schrock Plaza and the Adelphian Fountain area which underwent renewal a few years ago.

Mrs. Strasser, a resident of Evanston, IL, had an uncommon love for children and was a special friend of the college's Laboratory Kindergarten. Her sons and their wives, and her grandchildren have been involved in college activities — as students, as staff members, and as a President's Advisory Board member.

A constant Christian influence on the minds of the young
A gift has been received for the Goshen College Library in tribute to

A report on the memorial book program

In recent months 41 givers set up memorials in the Goshen College Library to honor loved ones. Their generosity and thoughtfulness added 83 books to the library collection.

Each volume was personalized with a bookplate recognizing both the giver and the person in whose memory the book was given.

For example, one of the books given by Mr. and Mrs. Simon Bontrager in memory of Sylvia Bontrager, is The History of the Organ in the United States.

One of the books given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Baker in memory of Frederick A. Conrad is The Sociology of the Future.

The Kalamazoo Mennonite Church made a gift in memory of John W. Horner, and one of the books in his memory is Peak's Commentary on the Bible.

Memorial gifts have also been received on other occasions other than death. In that event, they are known as Tribute Gifts and pay tribute to the one who is celebrating a birthday, wedding anniversary or other important milestone.

One of the benefits of a Memorial Gift is: it helps a person express his/her sympathy and thoughts at a time when it is so difficult to find words. Through the Memorial Gift Program one can express his/her sentiments honestly and compassionately. According to your direction, a memorial card is immediately sent to the person you wish notified. Your name and the friend or relative you are honoring is published in the Bulletin (amount of gift is never released). You also receive immediate confirmation that your gift has been received.

People live as long as they are remembered. They die only when they are forgotten. The Tribute/Memorial Program perpetuates their memory through countless generations.

Last summer's students in Ireland enjoyed, among other things, Aughnanure Castle north of Galway near Oughterard, built by the native Flaherty tribe of Connemara. The castle is unusual because it was not built by the invading Normans of the 13th and 14th centuries.

Alumni are invited to join the 1976 Celtic folklore bicycle tour and benefit from Ireland's traditional music, folk tales, lore in the literature of Yeats and Lady Gregory, religious legends and ancient archaeology. The tour may be for credit or audit. See listing below. (Photo by Lenny Jordan.)

Continuing education opportunities for alumni

Maternal and Child Nutrition Seminar.
Aug. 6-26. The problems and needs of the anemic and the malnourished who are caught in the world food crisis and how to respond with sensitivity and concern. Conducted in Jamaica by Bluffton College and GC. More information from Catherine R. Mumaw, Department of Home Economics, GC.

Smith's research on Bryan now published

The Social and Religious Thought of William Jennings Bryan, by Willard H. Smith and published by Coronado Press, culminates a lifetime of research and deep interest in the controversial and often misunderstood statesman.

"I have been interested in William Jennings Bryan since my boyhood," says Dr. Smith, professor emeritus of history at GC. "I noticed when I began a serious study of United States history that historians did not treat Bryan very favorable."

Distorted images of Bryan, from the Scopes (evolution) Trial in 1925 by Henry L. Mencken, Clarence Darrow and others, and more recently in the play and movie, "Inherit the Wind," are no doubt factors which have stereotyped Bryan as a narrow-minded, unintelligent bigot, according to Smith.

Focus Changes. Originally Smith had intended to write a biography of Bryan, but other historians, unknown to Smith at the time, had similar ideas.

"Since I began my research on Bryan, some books have appeared which present a new and fairer picture of him," says the retired college professor.

Smith says that he shifted his purpose and began developing certain areas in Bryan's life which other works did not sufficiently emphasize, including social and religious thought.

First Study on Religious Thought. Most of the studies, in their original form, have been read as papers before historical organizations and published in professional journals. To make them more easily and widely available, and to make the work on Bryan's religious fundamentalism available for the first time, the author decided to have the studies published together in book form.

For one thing, the book traces Bryan's pacifist thought. "Though not a conscientious objector to war in the sense of refusing to support it when the United States was actually in one, I know of no one who more strongly denounced war as unchristian and futile and who did more to keep the United States out of World War I," writes Smith.

The 283-page book is available by mail from the Goshen College bookstore. Postpaid, the price is $10.85.

Focus on alumni family life

The Amos '51 and Mary Martin '51 Conrad family — left to right, Jay, Mary, John, Amos, Spring (collie) and Peter (not pictured, Amy and Lanny) — of Tangent, Oregon. Life on the 1100-acre farm centers in raising turf and forage grass seed, wheat and 150 sheep. Mary plays shepherdess during lambing season. Usually, all four sons are home during the summer to help with the farming and the harvest. At Albany Mennonite Church Amos is an elder and Sunday-school teacher; Mary teaches the pre-schoolers. Amos is chairman of the board, Lebanon Community Hospital. Family hobbies include skiing, travel, salmon fishing, gardening. Amy, their eldest and only daughter, is married and is a schoolteacher in Goshen, Indiana. Lanny will be graduated this year from Oregon State U. with a major in agronomy; John is a junior at GC; Jay was graduated from high school last year and Peter is a high school junior.

The Vic '55 and Carolyn Weaver '56 Esch family — left to right, Vic, Carolyn, Linda and Rod — of Arvada, Colorado. With Linda in college and Rod a high school senior, Carolyn has begun full-time graduate study at the U. of Denver School of Social Work. Her new career follows five years as a Jefferson County Court volunteer probation counselor and a year at a part-time post in a psychiatric hospital. Vic, after 7 1/2 years in hospital and nursing home administration, returned to graduate school for the M.H.A. and an administrative hospital residency in Virginia. Then he became director of licensure of hospitals and nursing homes for the State of Colorado. Since 1973 he has been a health administrator for the Government Medicare Program for a six-state region. At Glennon Heights Mennonite Church Vic is on the constitution committee. Other church involvements have been a term on the Mennonite Board of Education and several terms on Frontier Boys Village Board of Directors. Carolyn has taught Sunday school, been involved in music, helped plan district WMSC retreats. Linda, at Hesston College, enjoys literature and writing poetry; Rod, an athlete, received all-conference honorable mention in football last fall. Family activities have been skiing, camping, traveling and boating, with the most memorable a week among the San Juan Islands of the Pacific Northwest.

The John '57 and Jean Sutter '57 King family — left to right, John, Karen, Jean and Randy — of Western Springs, Illinois. Educators — John, a former math and special education teacher, is now a guidance counselor at a 5200-student high school, and Jean is a kindergarten teacher and curriculum council member. John coached both soccer and basketball and was named Illinois High School Soccer Coach of the Year, 1972. Randy, 14, an athlete-musician, has been a starter on basketball teams for three years; played on the freshman football team; was the Pirate King in Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," produced by the eighth grade in 1975; plays cello, sings in three choirs. Karen, 10, enjoys reading and plays piano and viola. At Lombard Mennonite John is church treasurer and a former building committee member, and Jean has been a Sunday-school teacher and was congregational representative to study the ordination of women a few years ago. She continues her interest in women's role in the church. In the community John is a Kiwanian and teaches soccer for the park district; Jean is active in Community Theater and AAUW gourmet and novel study groups. In August the Kings go to northern Wisconsin to sail, water ski, canoe, golf and play tennis. They enjoy eating out together in the variety of restaurants that the Chicago metropolitan area offers, and appreciate the close fellowship of their church.

About the cover:

Six months of alumni gifts total $143,000

National Chairman Stanley Boyer '58 reports that gifts to the 1976 Alumni Fund for Quality Teaching totaled $143,381 on December 31. These gifts reflect six months of support from alumni in the college's fiscal year, which is July 1 to June 30.

In the similar period last year, alumni gave $140,047. The increase in the 1976 Fund is $3,334 or 2.4 percent.

The alumni portion of this year's $792,000 goal for gifts for Quality Teaching is $235,000. As of December 31, 61 percent of the goal had been met. To meet the alumni goal, $91,619 must be received by June 30, 1976.

Schedule for two appeals

Dr. Boyer, who is neurologist at Jackson Clinic, Madison, WI, will be sending a letter to all alumni in mid-February. And, in mid-March a national phonothon campaign will be held. Only alumni who have not yet taken part in this year's Fund for Quality Teaching will receive the February and March invitations to participate.

In reflecting on the mid-year report and on his responsibilities to lead this year's Alumni Fund, Dr. Boyer remarked: "When I was asked to chair the Alumni Fund, my first reaction was negative — another obligation. Jobs of this type seem to have a way of requiring far more time than they first appear.

"However, it required very little additional thought to conclude that I did indeed have that obligation. Many before me have invested far more time, effort and money to make my educational experience possible at Goshen."

Gifts to the 1976 Alumni Fund will provide the Goshen experience to this year's students, just as gifts of earlier years enabled today's alumni to benefit when they were in school.

Phonothon to reach 1600 alumni in March

The Alumni Association of Goshen College expects to reach about 1600 alumni of the college during the annual phonothon the last 15 days of March.

Gifts and pledges received from the phonothon will help meet the operations budget for quality teaching this fiscal year. Gifts must be received by June 30 to be counted toward the current year's needs.

The 1976 phonothon is the fifth in GC's history. Last year's was held in early June in a one-week period with all calls originating from Goshen. A total of $12,235 was given. It is estimated that over 80 percent of all alumni actually reached on the telephone made pledges to the 1975 Alumni Fund.

Another interesting fact is: over 400 alumni took part in the 1975 phonothon — either by making a gift or by volunteering as an evening chairperson or caller.

Because of suggestions received from last year's volunteers, the 1976 phonothon is earlier in the year and will include more prospective alumni givers.

Mennonite Church agencies appoint 22 alumni

Late last fall agencies, boards and commissions of the Mennonite Church made a number of appointments. Twenty-one of them were to persons who are alumni of Goshen College.

To advise on a vocational training program for Mennonite minority youth:
Tom Brown '73, Lupe Garcia '75, Art Griffin '75, J. J. Hostetler '48, Dwight McFadden '76, Jose Ortiz '62.

To carry out Mennonite historical research:
Leonard Gross '53, Mennonite Church archivist; Sharon Klingelsmith '70, associate archivist; Elizabeth Hershberger '46 Bauman, administrative assistant. Jan Gleysteen '55 and Gross will carry out a study of church architecture.

To lead Mennonite health and welfare services:
(Election results) William R. Zuercher '58, chairperson; Frances M. Bontrager Greaser, former faculty, vice-chairperson. Walter Drudge '52 is new board member.

To lead Mennonite overseas missions:
(Election results) David Hostetler '52, chairperson, and Calvin King '63, vice-chairperson.

To direct church school education in the Mennonite Church:
(New members) Lois Yake '48 Kenagy, and Al Valtierra '67; reelected was Wilbert Shenk '55.

To visit South Vietnam as one of the first North American groups since the end of the war:
Robert W. Miller '51, Linda Gibson '70 Hiebert, Dan Zehr '59.

Employment opportunities

Associate director of college relations

Associate Director of College Relations with major responsibility for alumni affairs; also serve as executive secretary of Alumni Association. Current alumni program is building a full range of services, contacts and involvement of alumni: alumni annual fund, volunteer leadership, annual alumni day, area meetings, alumni-student development, continuing education for alumni, alumni publications. Similar responsibilities, but on smaller scale, for growing parents program. The candidate must be able to interface with faculty, have initiative and organizational ability, be prepared for some travel. Position open July 1. Send nominations and/or applications to Daniel Kauffman, director of college relations, Goshen College, Goshen, IN 46526. GC's employment policy complies with all applicable Federal regulations regarding nondiscrimination on basis of sex, race, color, national or ethnic origin.

Opportunities in Appalachian area, Kentucky

Job opportunities are available for persons who are seeking an expression of Christian community while expanding the borders of the Mennonite Church in an area of unusual need.

Registered nurses, registered dietitians, dentists, medical technologists, X-ray technicians, physicians (especially pathologist, thoracic surgeon, psychiatrists, family practitioners) and others are needed in the Appalachian area of Kentucky. Businessmen, tradesmen, and craftsmen also may find challenging work.

A small group of Mennonites is interested in recruiting others who have a primary service motivation and who want to share in the supportive, concerned fellowship of the church, through small group experience, commitments to each other, worship and praise.

If this appeals to you, please contact J. D. and Evie Miller, Star Route, Box 511, Harlan, KY 40831, or Bill and Joyce Zuercher, 604 S. Main Street, Harlan, KY 40831. (We like children too.)

Women win state crown

The Maple Leafs women's volleyball team brought back the Indiana Small College Volleyball championship in December by winning a four-team double-elimination tournament at Anderson.

Goshen was one of 18 schools in Indiana which competed in north and south division playoffs in November for the right to compete at the state tournament.

In the state tourney Goshen defeated Taylor, Butler and Indiana-Purdue of Indianapolis. Goshen ended the regular season with an 8-3 record. Their tournament wins gave them 15-4 overall.

Preludes book still available

Hymn Preludes for the Mennonite Hymnal, 1969, is still available from the Goshen College bookstore.

The book contains 28 preludes by composers acquainted with the Mennonite Church, including Charles Burkhart, J. Harold Moyer and Alice Parker. The preludes are based on tunes found in the Mennonite Hymnal.

The book is plastic bound for easy use at organ (or piano) and is $3.50 postpaid.

Amstutz '73 is mayor

Ron Amstutz '73 sets the record among GC alumni to be the youngest to be mayor of a city. He is also the youngest mayor in history for the city he serves.

Twenty-four-years-old Amstutz was elected mayor of Orrville, OH, (pop. 7,000) last Nov. 4. He is a native of Kidron and an alumnus of Kent State U. as well as GC.

Among his interests are photography — he recently won a national award — and newswriting . . . he has been Orrville area news editor for the Wooster Daily Record.

Alumni wrote it

I will always have a soft spot in my heart for Goshen College. My year there was one of my best and some of the finest people I know are intimately acquainted with your program.

Joe Kirk '76
Mbandaka, Republic of Zaire

We think back to Goshen College with fond memories. But much more than that, we think of Goshen College with thanksgiving for the tremendous preparation she gave us for all these 42 years that have followed.

Ed '30 and Irene Lehman '32 Weaver
Gaborone, Botswana

Our situation is certainly not one unique to Goshen College alumni. For a school that encourages "service" experiences and vocations, it seems to us that Goshen College should not be surprised if many of its students go into VS, Pax, overseas missions, etc., and eventually again to school for further education to aid in meeting the physical and spiritual needs of their "neighbors."

Similarly, it seems to us that the Alumni Association should not be surprised if some of these alumni are not able to make yearly contributions to the alumni fund during such times of service or schooling. However, the letters from the Alumni Association soliciting financial support do not convey this realization. A case in point is the last one we received this week which states, ". . . you weren't among the supporters of 1975, We wonder why you feel your help wasn't needed." The purpose of this letter is to suggest that to some of your constituency, that is not the question; indeed, it is an unjust accusation to them.

Obviously, support for Goshen College is not limited to financial contributions. Actually, the extent to which alumni are true disciples of Jesus Christ ministering to the needs of their fellow men and women will be the strongest support possible to Goshen College.

Consequently, in future letters to alumni, we would encourage you to in some way acknowledge the fact that all alumni may not be able to make a financial gift to the college. Perhaps it would be appropriate to remind them of other ways (possibly of even greater significance!) in which they can presently support Goshen College. For example, they might encourage prospective college students to apply to Goshen College, directly help the financially needy student, and certainly prayer for the faculty and administration is appropriate for a church-related school.

Since we are not the ones soliciting contributions, it is easier for us to say these things than for you. The question for you remains, "How does the Alumni Association maximize its dollar input without hurting the financial 'have nots' and antagonizing the apathetic?" One suggestion: perhaps you could acknowledge in your written appeals for donations the above situations of some of your alumni. Then encourage those who are unable to make a financial contribution this year to inform you accordingly, and they will not be bombarded repeatedly with requests for money.

Gerald Short '67
Columbia, MO

Your spirit means much to us, and your suggestions on ways alumni can help the college are very helpful. We have many times been puzzled why up to 75 percent of our alumni do not send a gift. Your letter aids us in understanding some of the reasons. — Editor.

We remember with much satisfaction and joy our years at Goshen as students.

Alumni day in fall, not spring

Get out your calendars. Make a note. Alumni Day, 1976, will be in fall, a change from the traditional June weekend of the last several years.

There are a number of reasons for the change. Foremost is: to increase the attractiveness of the weekend to alumni, special campus activities and a major student production can be arranged better in the fall when the total student body is on hand. In the spring trimester, only a sprinkling of students are on campus.

The planning and specifics for the fall, 1976, weekend are uppermost on the agenda of the April 10 meeting of the Executive Board of the Alumni Association. To help the Board sense alumni preferences, you are invited to fill out the poll below and mail it before March 20.

Fill out, clip out, and mail this reader's preference poll to Alumni Relations Office, Goshen College, Goshen, IN 46526. Your responses will guide further planning.

		Yes	No
1.	A weekend in October, 1976, would be suitable to me/us	( )	( )
2.	I would enjoy visiting Friday convocation and classes and meeting profs	( )	( )
3.	I would attend the Alumni Annual Dinner on Friday evening (short address by Pres. Burkholder) and a student production of music or drama afterwards	( )	( )
4.	For Fund volunteers: I would attend a Saturday morning breakfast only for those who helped in the 1976 Fund	( )	( )
5.	I would attend a major Saturday morning "input and feedback" session for alumni and administration	( )	( )
6.	I would like a class reunion every five years. (In 1976, the following classes would have reunions: '26, '31, '36, '41, '46, '51, '56, '61, '66, '71.)	( )	( )
7.	I would like a class reunion every 10th year, with the exception of the 25th year. (In 1976 the following classes would have reunions: '26, '36, '46, '51, '56, '66.)	( )	( )

Education's solid state

By J. Lawrence Burkholder

The year 1970 is generally regarded as a year of transition for higher education. That year brought to a halt the post-war period of heady growth and confidence. Thus far the 70's have dealt colleges one blow after another — first the recession of 1970, then declining enrollments followed by double digit inflation, fewer government grants, emphasis upon technical education, a tight job situation and the recession of 1974.

The net result is frequently called the "solid state." By that, we mean an essentially no growth situation in which emphasis is placed upon nailing down earlier gains and operating within budget. The goal is stability with few new faculty, few new curricula and few new buildings.

The impact of solid state

The psychological impact of solid state, though less visible, is no less real than the physical impact. On the one hand, college people take genuine satisfaction in standing up during difficult times. Holding one's ground is in itself regarded as an achievement.

On the other hand it is difficult for a generation that grew up in a period of expansion to rejoice in a no growth situation. Futhermore, the pressures of the 70's have tended to divert faculty attention away from academic concerns toward public relations, student demands, church expectations and community needs. The traditional leisurely independence of the scholarly life is gradually receding as a luxury belonging to a previous period. Some faculty feel that their professional integrity is threatened and their calling to scholarship is being eroded.

Also it has been noted that the character of the presidency has changed with emphasis upon management rather than reflection. Whereas presidents were once philosophers and theologians, they are now increasingly politicians, lawyers and businessmen. The replacement of Harvard's President Pusey, a classicist, by President Bok, a lawyer, is symbolic of a general shift. Along with this shift has gone the mystique of the college president. The average tenure of highest executive officers of colleges and universities is five years.

The experience of Goshen

How is Goshen faring during this period of solid state? Goshen has certainly not been immune to general trends among colleges and universities. However, the following observations need to be made:

1. Faculty. The faculty, while not having grown in size, has not been cut.

2. New courses. There have been significant curricular developments during the past four years. Goshen has adopted a new general education program called "Humane Studies"; the business curriculum has been significantly expanded; a new program in medical technology has been started this academic year; Study And Work (SAW), career counseling and placement programs have been set up; co-majors are available and senior practicums/internships are graduation requirements to help students develop employable skills; next fall Goshen will offer new programs in world service and tropical agriculture.

3. Statement of commitment. The faculty has adopted a statement of faith setting forth the main theological convictions of the college as a Christian community. Goshen is not a non-descript, run-of-the-mill, come-what-may school. It is a Christian college with a point of view which is implicit in its life and explicit in its articulations.

4. Discussions with the church. The Bible faculty has engaged in a number of helpful theology discussions with ministers and representatives of various Mennonite conferences.

5. International education. Despite inflationary pressures at home and abroad, the Study-Service Trimester (SST) has continued as an integral part of the liberal arts program. To date over 1900 students have gone on SST.

6. Religious life. The religious life of the campus is probably stronger now than it has been for many years. The "team ministry" concept has become a reality and is functioning with the help of students and a council consisting of parents and local ministers.

7. Placement. The percentage of Goshen College graduates finding employment within their fields of preparation is far above the national average. Over 98 percent of elementary education and over 75 percent of the secondary education majors of the Class of '75 got jobs in their areas of specialization by September.

8. Communication center. Goshen College has completed funding for a communication center costing $1,300,000 for construction and endowment. This will be the first major capital improvement since 1966. This building will have been financed entirely by special gifts.

9. Community goodwill. Much encouragement and good will comes to the college from the people of Elkhart County. The generosity of local business and professional people has been an important factor in keeping Goshen College in the black. The community appears to appreciate the moral integrity of the college, its service motivation and its academic excellence.

10. No operating deficits. Contributions from the churches have risen steadily, and, along with gifts from many sources, have enabled the college to balance its operating budget for 36 consecutive years. The General Board of the Mennonite Church has proposed that churches double their contributions through church offerings from 1975 to 1978.

The problems we face

There are, however, some problems which we constantly face. Some of them are beyond our ability to solve. Others may be solved over a period of years.

1. Many expectations. The Mennonite constituency brings to the college diverse and sometimes contradictory expectations. It is, therefore, difficult to meet the needs of everyone.

2. A negative image. Goshen College is impeded by a negative image among various members of its constituency. This image is based partly upon fact and partly upon a myth of long standing. Myths have a power of their own and cannot be removed by specific changes since they are based at best imperfectly on reality. Goshen will never really flourish until a negative myth is replaced by understanding of what Goshen College is.

3. A small base. The denominational base for Goshen College is relatively small. Therefore, the percentage of Mennonite students electing to attend Goshen is critical. If Goshen is to remain a Mennonite school, the church will have to assist the college by "sending" their young people to Goshen.

4. Future depends on faithfulness. The future of the college is tied to the future of the Mennonite Church. If the Mennonite Church is faithful to its mission, the future of the college is thereby strengthened. Conversely, if the Mennonite Church loses its vision and identifies itself with popular, established Christianity, the going will be hard for Goshen College. We are confident that the Mennonite Church will in the long run withstand all manner of popular interpretations of Christianity that are brought to our homes by mass media.

The challenge at this time is to take advantage of every opportunity available for improvement of the educational program despite the difficulty of the times. The real test is faculty and student morale. It is difficult for us here at Goshen to compete with schools which have access to the tax dollar. We struggle and struggle for equipment and capital improvement which well-endowed private colleges and state universities take for granted.

Unusual elements on campus

There is, however, an all important element which very few schools share with Goshen College, namely, theological unity and experience of community. We have a conviction based upon a vision of life under God which we share as a faculty and to which students become a part. This conviction unites us and the tougher it gets the closer the faculty and students close ranks.

Furthermore, we have developed an administrative style in keeping with our theological understandings. This includes a well articulated definition of responsibilities, clear channels of communication and recourse. It also includes consensus formation based upon principles of brotherhood. At Goshen College bureaucratic administration is qualified by personal regard for the feelings of all who are involved. This means that emphasis is placed upon the person rather than the office, responsibility rather than rights and service rather than power. What we are trying to do at Goshen is to bring into a college setting the reality of community life as set forth in the idea of the church as a brotherhood. We do this without claiming to be a church as such.

As to the future, we do not see it becoming easier. However, we are not convinced that our future is not one of mere survival. We feel that the future is a test of our courage, faith, creativity, flexibility and brotherhood. We too shall overcome.

Two new programs

By John A. Lapp

John A. Lapp is dean of Goshen College.

In the tropics there is a tragic combination of high population density and low agricultural production. Those of us who are fortunate enough to have been born in temperate climates with food surplus are called to help tropical peoples to develop their agricultural resources. The new curriculum in world service is intended to help young people reinforce their idealism and vision with administrative skills, technical knowledge and an enlightened Christian philosophy of service.
— J. Lawrence Burkholder

In the fall of 1976 two new co-majors are being established, subject to the approval of the Mennonite Board of Education. A co-major is a program focusing a skill or interest with one of the traditional disciplines. Currently co-majors are offered in communication, peace studies, business and religion. The new co-majors announced are in world service and tropical agriculture.

Goshen College has always been identified with the concept of service. From the motto "Culture for Service" to the Study-Service Trimester, faculty, students and constituencies have seen in the service motif an explanation of purpose and program.

Service has also been a primary characteristic of the sponsoring Mennonite Church found in the mutual aid of the congregation and the world wide activities of mission-service agencies. Service as mission and occupation finds its ultimate justification in the biblical mandate to love one's neighbor as one's self.

Education for service today requires: (1) a well-developed sense of Christian purpose; (2) an awareness of cultural variety and cultural integrity; (3) a self-conscious critical sensitivity both to one's own personality and culture, the sending institutions and host culture; (4) skill and style appropriate to cross-cultural communication and understanding.

World service

A co-major usually consists of 16-18 hours supplementing a 24 hour academic major. The world service co-major can be compacted into one calendar year for students who already have a degree, transfer students or mature persons who do not desire a degree. Usually this will mean course work during the fall trimester, SST winter trimester with spring trimester devoted to the World Service Seminar, additional foreign language or equivalent and the North American service experience. Persons who elect this program as a one-year course apart from a Goshen degree will be eligible to receive a certificate at the end of one year.

This co-major should consist of courses providing skills and experience in cultural analysis, self-awareness, cross-cultural communication and the vision of service as Christian mission.

Each student will choose a track around which to develop a competency. In some cases this can include both an area study and topical specialty. Possible tracks are: area studies, i.e., Latin America, Asia, Africa, or topics, i.e., minority relations; community development (nutritionists, organizers); community health (family planning, health education); tropical agriculture; education in developing nations; economic development (organization of small business, credit and accounting); program organization and administration; teaching English as a foreign language; health; nursing.

Tropical agriculture

The program in tropical agriculture will include a quarter at the University of Florida in Gainesville. There the student will take courses in world vegetables, soils, tropical plant pathology and tropical entomology.

C. Frank Bishop, this year on a Lilly Faculty Fellowship studying tropical agriculture, already a consultant to Mennonite service agencies, will serve as co-ordinator of this co-major.

The co-ordinator for World Service will be named later this spring.

Estate planning seminars in Iowa, Indiana

Kalona, Iowa, and Goshen, Indiana, are the locations of estate planning seminars in late April, Gordon R. Yoder, director of special and deferred giving at Goshen College, has announced.

The Kalona meeting is in cooperation with Iowa Mennonite School and is set for 6:15 p.m., Friday, April 23, at Kalonial Townhouse.

Program chairman will be J. John J. Miller, Wellman, Iowa. Speakers will be Byron R. Ross, C.P.A., and John H. Rudy, director of financial services of Mennonite Foundation, Goshen, Indiana.

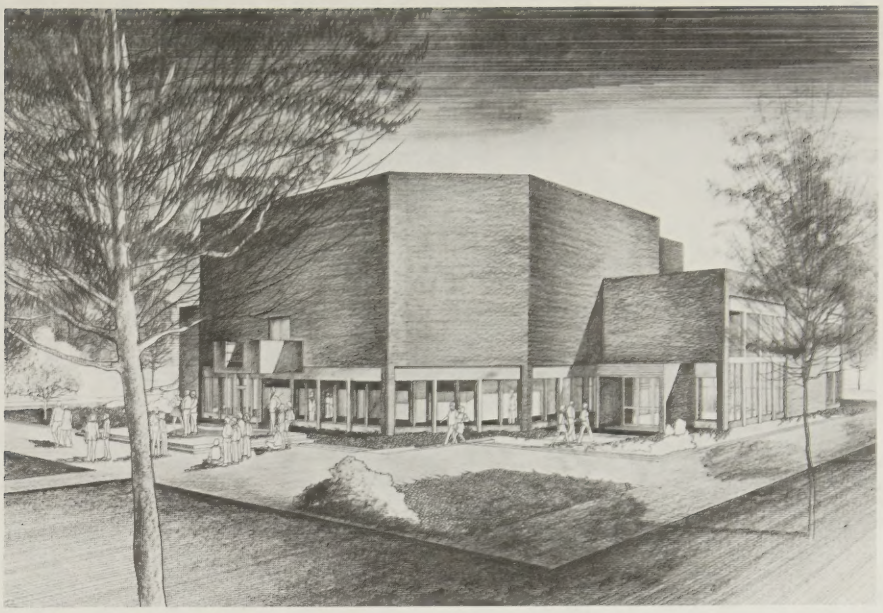
Myron Graber, director of development at Iowa Mennonite School, says the cost of the seminar will be $3.50 per person for dinner.

A special estate planning seminar for women is set for Wednesday, April 28, from 9:45 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. in the fellowship room of Goshen College's Church-Chapel.

Arranged by Jane Culp and Beth Rieth, both of Goshen, the event will include presentations by trust department personnel of the four area banks, and by John H. Rudy, of the Mennonite Foundation.

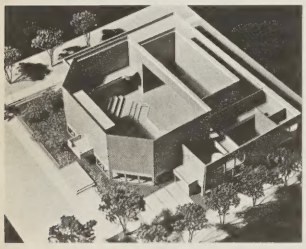
Among the topics to be covered are the necessity for estate planning, wills, trusts, joint ownership, investments, and charitable aspects of estate planning.

A $5.00 registration fee will be charged to cover the cost of the luncheon and other incidental expenses.



Architect's sketch of entrance of communication center as viewed from Schrock Plaza. The building is sited on the central campus green.

Goal reached to build and endow center



Bird's-eye view of three-dimensional scale model shows auditorium, stage, and auxiliary rooms of the communication center. It is to be ready for use in fall, 1977.

The goal of $1.3 million in gifts and pledges has been reached for building and endowment of Goshen College's communication center, J. Lawrence Burkholder, president, has announced.

The final gift to make the building possible came from the Krannert Charitable Trust, of Indianapolis, Indiana. Its grant was $300,000.

Gifts from Mr. and Mrs. Yost

The first gift toward the building was $500 000 in 1973 from Lyle and Erma Yost, of Hesston, Kansas. Their gift kicked off the search to complete the financing in as short a time as possible.

Another major source of funding is the Kresge Foundation, of Detroit, Michigan. Their $100,000 pledge was contingent upon the college completing the financing by March 15, 1976.

Gifts and pledges from a group of alumni and friends complete the financing to reach the goal.

Interests in agriculture and drama

In announcing the gift, Burkholder outlined the interests of Lyle and Erma Yost, both of whom are Goshen College graduates. Lyle Yost is founder, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Hesston Corporation, manufacturers of a diverse line of farming and industrial equipment.

Mrs. Yost, a former schoolteacher, is influential as a leader in community theater and dramatic arts in central Kansas, and has interests in anthropology and archaeology as well.

First grant

The pledge from the Krannert Charitable Trust is its first to Goshen College. The trust is widely known for its philanthropy to education and the arts.

A spokesman for Krannert told Burkholder, "We are very favorably impressed with the overall program of Goshen College, as confirmed to us by objective outsiders. The new communication center should permit even higher levels of achievement and excellence, and we are very pleased to have a part in this progress."

The Kresge grant is that foundation's third gift, Burkholder said. Previous gifts completed the construction and landscaping of Good Library and the major remodeling of the Administration Building.

Burkholder also explained that under GC's management policies new capital projects may be started only when cash and pledges are in hand for construction as well as for endowment of the project's annual operating expenses.

Burkholder said the communication center will ease the persistent demands for the Union auditorium and stage for numerous music and speech-arts activities and rehearsals. It will return the Union gym to those who need it for a full physical education, athletics and recreation program.

In addition, the new center will make possible exploration and application of principles of speech-arts for worship and religious services.

Building to begin soon

The two-story, 17,600-square-foot communication center is sited between the Arts Building and Good Library. Construction will begin in early spring with completion set for one year later.

Its 450-seat auditorium will accommodate rehearsals and productions, as well as serve as a lecture room for large classes. A rehearsal room with a balcony adjacent to the lobby will provide a place for experimental presentations and receptions. Auxiliary to the stage will be several work rooms, dressing rooms, stage shop, actors' balcony, costume-properties shop, projection studio and loft. The building will also house seminar lounges, faculty offices, lobby and cloak room.

In addition, outside productions will be possible as a result of a landscaped acting area in front of the center.

Architectural features

Architect for the building is Weldon Pries, a former student at Goshen, now of Cambridge, Massachusetts. Among the unusual architectural features of the building is a series of alcoves in the semicircular lobby, which are intended to promote a natural way to enhance the relationships among the users of the building. After a program, small groups of the audience can meet members of the cast, performers or the director and discuss the presentation.

Pries points out that versatility was in the design of the building from the very beginning. For one thing, three major stage arrangements can be accommodated: proscenium stage; "center stage arena," with the audience on two sides of the stage; and "open stage" with the audience "wrapping around" the stage area on three sides.

For another, a peripheral balcony permits program participants to mix among the audience, at different places and levels.

In addition to the usual performance hall features, it was the intent of the architect to express values such as "assembly," "educational interaction," and "interpersonal response." Such values humanize the learning process and enhance creative expression.

Two weekend seminars in May

History, Christian perspectives: May 14-15

An American History and Christian Perspectives Seminar on campus May 14-15 is for persons, particularly elementary and high school teachers, who want help in integrating Christian discipleship with an interpretation of the American experience.

Sponsors of the event are the Goshen College Center for Discipleship and Indiana-Michigan and Central District Conference peace committees.

Speakers are Don Kraybill, author of The Star-Spangled Bible (soon to be published) and sociology professor at Elizabethtown (Pennsylvania) College; and Theron Schlabach, associate professor of history at Goshen College.

Workshops will focus on "Integrating Faith and History from a Nonresistant Viewpoint" led by Al Deeter, associate dean and director of peace studies, Manchester College; "Demythologizing American History"; and "Patriotic Rituals and Bicentennial Celebrations," by Peter Ediger, pastor, First Mennonite Church, Arvada, Colorado, and special Bicentennial observance resource person under MCC.

The seminar begins Friday evening and concludes Saturday afternoon. Registration fee is $5 per person. More information is available from Center for Discipleship, Goshen College, Goshen, IN 46526.

Business and survival strategies: May 21-22

The second annual small business management seminar will focus on strategies for survival, Rudolf Dyck, seminar chairman, has announced.

The seminar, set for Friday noon, May 21, through Saturday afternoon, May 22, is sponsored by the department of business and economics at Goshen College.

Keynote speaker is Norman R. Weldon, executive vice-president, CTS Corporation, Elkhart, Indiana. His topic is "Strategies for Survival."

Other speakers are Robert White, CPA, managing partner of Alexander Grant & Co., Detroit; Robert J. Genetski, economist, Harris Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago; Mitchell S. Novit, associate professor of personnel and organizational behavior, Graduate School of Business, Indiana University; and Robert C. Klekamp, professor at Xavier University Graduate School of Business.

White's topic is "Financial Statements: A Tool for Growth." Genetski's is "State of the Economy"; Novit's is "Motivation" and Klekamp's is "The Neurotic Organization."

A new feature this year is Saturday morning workshops. White will lead "Break-even Analysis for the Small Business," and Novit will lead "Personnel Management in the Small Business." A third workshop will be "Computer Applications for the Small Business," led by a software and time-sharing specialist and two co-leaders, both hardware specialists.

Cost of the workshop is $30 a person. More information is available from the department of business and economics.

'They are made of the same stuff as we are'

A report of the Mini-SST to Belize by Alton and Dorothy Horst

Alton and Dorothy Horst visit with Belizean artist, Louis Belisle. The artist's studio, below his second floor home, includes a dirt floor, no walls and free roaming chickens and dogs.

Saturday, March 6 (enroute)

I'm wondering about our host family. Are they happy about the prospects of guests from another country or do they feel victims of pressure? Are they too concerned about having everything "just right for company"? Will we be able to put them at ease and to express adequately our appreciation?

Sunday, March 7

Our day began early as we left with Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Marin, our host family, for 6 a.m. Mass at St. Joseph's. The priest was a very black man, a Carib, our host pointed out. The fair complexioned song leader was a Creole and the man who read Scripture has Spanish features — a mestizo, no doubt.

After church Mr. Marin took us along the seashore where children from the city were competing in a homemade kite flying contest. "You see, we have no racial discrimination in our country," said Mr. Marin as he gestured toward a group of children from many ethnic backgrounds lamenting the crash landing of a beautiful kite.

There is a strong nationalistic pride, and it is important to be a Belizean. The word "independence" is attached to many things of status. Our family showed pictures of their daughter who entered the beauty pageant and became "Miss Belize City" and went on to be "Miss Independence" — the equivalent to Miss America. Their son is a boxing trainer from Independence Gym. These people are expressive and proud. They hold their heads high.

Monday, March 8

House-wise, it appears that our hosts have more than many in Belize. A little shanty in the yard provides the cold water shower and another shanty behind that is the bathroom. There is another bathroom inside the house. All bathing, dishwashing and laundry are done with cold water because propane to heat water is very expensive. Vat water (rain water) is preferred for drinking because of less contamination than tap water. Our family has an electric refrigerator, washing machine, Singer sewing machine, radio and Panasonic cassette player.

Today Paul Rodrigues, mayor of Belize City, said, "We have no poverty here in Belize." But what is it that makes this place look so completely poverty stricken? Houses are small and built in random fashion on stilts as protection from the floods and tides of destructive hurricanes which have wiped out much of the city repeatedly. Sewage is a great problem. Septic tanks are above ground and drain into open ditches on either side of the road — another reason for having houses elevated.

This land has been carved out of jungle and swamp. Space is precious and each family has its little property surrounded by fence of unpainted picket or corrugated steel, rusted by the salt water atmosphere.

I notice that the people are well dressed — many of them very well dressed. I don't see dirty children on the street. Wash hanging on the line is very white in spite of limited cold water and dusty streets. How can they wear so many light and bright colors and stay so clean?

Wednesday, March 10

Hattieville. The transplant of Beachy Amish culture, particularly the dress, seems incongruous. International, intercultural, interfaith communication demands the laying aside of inessential trappings which hinder the acceptance of the more important ideas. Missionary outreach of the Mennonite Church or any church, in Belize, or anywhere else requires a conscious shucking of nonessentials and the communication of relevant faith. The key to good communication is careful listening.

Seine Bight Village. The trip was hot, dusty and bumpy as we slowly made our way over swamp land and mountain, past coconut, banana and cocoa plantations, through miles of thick jungle blooming colorfully. We threaded our way through valleys of citrus groves, beautiful in bloom and fruit, making the air heavy with fragrance.

Arriving at Mongo Creek, we found a dory waiting for us in which we traveled across the lagoon for half an hour to the dock of beautiful Seine Bight, a village of all black Carib people except for "Miss Betty," blonde-haired SST student Beth Gerig, who is helping to teach school children in Standard One.

Immediately upon setting foot in Seine Bight we were honored guests, touring school classes, visiting homes. We felt at once a part of the people; there were warm, sincere, interested greetings. Hospitality that is rich is shared in a setting of the humblest circumstances — no electricity, no running water. A mattress is brought from another house by moonlight and placed on the floor of a room about 6 x 7 feet.

Finally we said goodnight and went to bed to the rhythmic sound of the sea. Some of these people are born, live and die to the never ending slap of the sea against the shore — the sea which is the source of life and the cause of death; the beautiful sea which is also the village dump.

San Pedro. Where many tourists come to do the tourist thing: swimming, visiting the Great Barrier Reef, snooping around the souvenir shops and being served meals. I also note that we are "grumbling" a bit about power outages and water shortage. The local people respond to us as tourists, not as friends. Greetings are cool. I am uncomfortable in the role of tourist.

The Great Barrier Reef is an underwater world of wondrous beauty! Can it be that I am quietly gliding amidst beautifully formed and colored formations. I'm obviously a tourist here too. I observe the beautiful tropical fish eyeing me with curiosity, then glide slowly out of my way. In a sense, though, I feel a part of their community, being as close to these as through the glass of an aquarium. Once again, I'm struck with the fact that I'm a part of God's creation as these also are a part. The physical world is bound together by a cohesive force one might describe as an art masterpiece — it's all there, though sometimes hidden, and there is nothing superfluous.

Thursday, March 11

In vast contrast to the primitive Carib village is the Old Mennonite Colony, Spanish Lookout. Unlike the Mennonite settlement to the north, these people are clean and honest, good farmers and classed by their conservative northern brethren as "liberals."

As Carol Ulmer said, "It is like a piece of Indiana transplanted into Belize. It is fantastic, almost unbelievable!" Tractors, trucks, vans and other implements are utilized in the production and marketing of grain, feed, meat, eggs, dairy products, baby chicks and other commodities.

Large families are desired and the work ethic is held in esteem. As one man said to us, "If you have five children and I have ten, in a short time I will get twice as much work done as you will." By terrific effort and determination, the jungle has been converted to productive farm land but as yet the colony has not caught the vision of the spiritual needs of those beyond their boundary. Perhaps when survival becomes more relaxed, mission will dawn.

Friday, March 12

Agriculture is the backbone of Belize economy with sugar playing the dominant role. The British Sugar Company came and developed the struggling industry and established it firmly. Their hopeful goal for next year is 120,000 tons.

Belize has to compete with Brazil and Israel on open market for sale of citrus fruit. Belize is hoping both countries will hold back this year to avoid flooding the market. Then Belize with her smaller market may have a chance.

This country used to import all her rice until a California man began rice production here. When the operation got too big, he sold it to corporations who plan to develop it and sell it back to farmers. Although production is insufficient to export, it no longer is necessary to import rice.

Bananas are produced but not many exported. The few scattered cattle are thin because feed is not easily available. Fisheries are in the hands of cooperatives made up of the "little man." Large amounts of lobster and conch are exported to U.S.

Gladys Stuart, a charming black lady and former schoolteacher, explained to us how Creole was born. When black workers from Africa and West Indies came to work for Englishmen in the logwood harvest, they could not understand the tribal language of one another. They tried to copy their English bosses and Creole evolved. For example:

Make haste and come here.
Mek case come yah.

One soon gets the feel of tonal expression and some of the idioms. More difficult for me is understanding the phonetic shortening of words and word combinations. Language characteristics are part of what make people interesting and learning even a little of the dialect opens up exacting levels of communication. We purchased a cassette tape, borrowed our host's recorder and taped some of this local color from Radio Belize.

The famous artist, Louis Belisle, has a most humble studio, not larger than 9 x 12. Under his house on stilts he has what he jokingly calls his museum. Mr. Belisle is not ignorant of what art studios and museums are. He has been abroad and studied under famous painters in England. But he prefers to return home to his humble life and paint from his heart in his own style. With a twinkle in his eye he says, "Painting is a marvelous way to waste time."

Belisle says, "Sketch a scene, either from a visual observation or from the mind, then rub it out and paint from the mind." Thus, the impressions of the mind become the finished painting and thus the artist becomes a part of his work. It's as true in life. One's contribution is of little value if only superficial. Creative action grows from perceptive observation transformed into vision by the mind. "Out of the heart the mouth speaketh" may also be stated as "Out of the heart the hand moves."

Saturday, March 13

We arrived at the wharf behind the Texaco station to meet the 8:00 a.m. boat to San Pedro Cay — an island in the Caribbean with the second longest reef in the world. Actually it was 10:30 before we began to load. What a trip, this cruise on the Caribbean for three hours!

Our third floor room in the Beach Hotel is a perfect place to look out over the sea. Being a tourist — instead of a student — is nice for a while — a hotel room with running (sometimes) water and toilet facilities in the room.

Sunday, March 14

Back in Belize, we gathered at dusk with our Belizean families on the roof garden of Dona Peggy for a reception. It was interesting to meet the other families who have tried so hard to please us during the past week. What would they think if they knew we have too many conveniences at home — even simple things like enough matching dishes for the whole family and hot running water — to say nothing of such luxuries as dishwashers? How would we cope with a hurricane every few years, destroying our homes and belongings and possibly our business, making it repeatedly necessary to start over from scratch? And yet, they are willing to open their homes to us and share, with love and no apologies, what little they have.

Monday, March 15

Sitting on the veranda of a thatched-roof motel in Guatemala, flanked by bushes of lavender bougainvillaea and orange bird of paradise, I hear the parrots chattering in the trees. I look back on a long day of 8 1/2 hours of waiting and driving, waiting and driving. Noon hour and siesta time in Guatemala is not the time to try to cross the border. We used our two-hour delay to eat lunch along the river bank.

The road up to Tekal, the famous Mayan ruins, was even worse than the road south to Mongo Creek. Because of all the delays and poor roads, we arrived too late to explore tonight. A good sleep will prepare us for tomorrow.

Tuesday, March 16

Fr. Diekman from Belize, a Jesuit priest who was born and raised in St. Louis, is our guide. He led us to the temples, ball courts and causeways of an advanced civilization. The 16 square kilometer city was built well over a thousand years ago. The massive structures, architecture and glyphs are almost beyond comprehension for a people without the mechanization we know. No one seems to know exactly why their civilization declined. One wonders what the future is for our own marvelous developments.

Wednesday, March 17

We have grown close to these people in Belize in the past twelve days together. As we prepare to leave we hear them say, "If you would just stay longer we could . . ." and "When you come the next time . . . ."

I wonder what my obligation to these people in Belize is. I want to take home with me some love like Mrs. Marin has. Love that will take in strangers, or children from the streets who need a mother's love.

As our taxi pulls away and we wave goodbye for the last time, Rosaline turns away to brush the tears from her eyes.

I'm glad we walked and talked and lived with these people. They are made of the same stuff we are.

Diary writing takes place anywhere. On this day, the boat dock of San Pedro, a small fishing village on the Atlantic, worked out best for Dorothy Horst. The Mini-SST unit visited the village two days. The Great Barrier Reef, second largest in the world, is within a mile offshore.

Alice Roth named director of alumni relations

Alice Metzler '57 Roth

Alice Metzler '57 Roth, Elkhart, IN, will be the new director of alumni relations, succeeding Daryl Nofziger '64, who resigned this spring after two years of service.

Until Mrs. Roth begins her duties in early August, LaJane Richer '62 Yoder is interim director of alumni relations.

Roth a native of Pennsylvania

Mrs. Roth is a native of Scottdale, Pennsylvania, and a 1957 B.A. graduate of GC with a major in English. She and Mrs. Yoder, as interim director, are the first women to carry out the dual role of director of alumni relations and the executive secretary of the Alumni Association in the 82-year history of the college and the 75-year history of the Alumni Association.

In commenting on her appointment, Mrs. Roth said, "It is hard to imagine a more congenial group of people to work with than Goshen College alumni."

She added, "I believe that the college is responsible to the church, which means also that the church is responsible for the college. Alumni have a particular perspective from which to evaluate and support the college — the vantage point of their own school experience, viewed through the lens of congregation, job and community life since those college years. I look forward to being part of this two-way relationship."

Wide experience

Mrs. Roth brings a wide variety of experiences to her new position. She is a former news editor of the Independent-Observer, a weekly in Scottdale, Pennsylvania, and a former literature missionary in Ghana.

Since 1973 she has been communications coordinator and administrative assistant with Mennonite Board of Education, the Board that appoints the Board of Overseers, GC's board of control.

Studied in Africa

Mrs. Roth has done a year of graduate study for the M.A. with a major in sociology of African religions at the University of Ghana, Accra. She has also studied at Goshen Biblical Seminary and been a student at Drake University where she studied journalism.

With her husband Willard, she has co-authored a religious education curriculum book. She has also written many articles for a range of audiences served by Mennonite organs.

The Roths live in Elkhart. Daughter Carla is a junior at GC and son Kevin is a junior at Bethany Christian High. Willard is an information services editor for Mennonite Board of Missions.

Mrs. Roth's assignment is to bring alumni and college closer together and to foster greater volunteer support and participation by alumni. The alumni annual fund; area meetings for alumni, parents and friends; continuing education opportunities for alumni; alumni weekend; and building alumni-student relations are among the specific areas she will be giving close attention to as she begins her first year.

Interim director

Mrs. Yoder has a long familiarity with alumni affairs, having served as secretary for 13 years either in the alumni office or in college relations. In mid-fall, she and her husband, Associate Dean Orville Yoder, will leave for Honduras to lead Study-Service Trimester units.

Nine area meetings January to May Visiting with J. Daniel (left) and Joy Hess (seated), GC faculty, at the Youngstown, OH, meeting is Ralph Witmer, of Salem. J. Daniel Hess was the speaker of the evening.

Helen Lapp, writing in Franconia Conference News, reports that Jan. 31 at Blooming Glen Mennonite Church Fellowship Hall was an "historic first."

About 150 alumni and friends of the three church colleges — Eastern Mennonite, Goshen, Hesston — plus high school seniors met for dinner and a major address by Orville Yoder, associate dean of GC, titled "The Survival of Mennonite Higher Education." EMC and Hesston alumni directors also spoke briefly. A faculty male quartet from Christopher Dock High School provided a musical interlude.

Planning committee members were Don Hedrick, Mike Lambright '68, Helen Lapp and Mary Rittenhouse.

Sarasota area meeting

J. Lawrence Burkholder, president of Goshen College, addressed a group of 130 alumni and friends in Florida at the Western Sizzlin' Steak House, Sarasota, on Feb. 16. His message was an update on the developments and new programs at the college.

Coordinators for one of the best attended Florida meetings in the history of the college were Ray and Romaine Stahl '47 Sala and Lamar '68 and Patty Kanagy '69 Holsopple.

Youngstown, Ohio, area meeting

Greg Bowman '74 reports: "GC Prof. J. Daniel Hess did some 'thinking out-loud about academics' and the Brimming Cup gave its musical offering at the Goshen College area meeting in Boardman, Ohio, Feb. 21.

"Twenty-eight persons joined Toastmaster William Yoder for the evening's meal and fellowship.

"Hess outlined the intent of the general education Humane Studies Program and noted the college's endeavor to expose each student to various modes of inquiry and thought outside one selected major.

"The communication department chairman also talked about present jobs held by graduates of the college's writing/journalism courses. While positions on newspapers and magazines and in public relations and church agencies were logical steps for communication department grads, Hess said the larger goal was to make students more critical of what comes to them through the mass media."

Washington, DC, area meeting

The Washington-Baltimore area meeting on March 13 was a one-day art appreciation seminar for laypersons capped by an evening dinner meeting at the Flagship Restaurant.

The seminar, led by Abner Hershberger '60, professor of art, included a tour of Hirschhorn Museum and a slide lecture on the "Mennonite Artists Contemporary" show at GC last winter. The exhibit was the first known art event of its kind in North America.

Galen Yoder '67 reports the day's events: "It was definitely a success and must be repeated at other locations in the future. A group of 30 spent a very enriching morning together. In the afternoon, Abner led a group on a tour of the Hirschhorn Museum. His familiarity with the artists and their works was impressive and easily surpassed what we could have expected from a regular tour guide provided by the Museum.

"The atmosphere of the day was informal as was that of the evening meal. It was significant that about 30 of the 55 persons present in the evening were in the 30-and-under set. Also, in contrast to our previous banquet, the atmosphere was much less formal with ties less apparent.

"The response to the day was enthusiastic. There were some faces which normally would not have been seen at an alumni gathering. The day represented a new era in college public relations—focusing on personal enrichment and on artistic lines rather than the standard public relations lines."

Coordinators of the meeting were Sidney D. Kreider '60, Anne Quiring '60 Miller, Carol Jean Roupp '66 Weber, and Galen O. Yoder '67.

Western Pennsylvania area meeting

Ninety-five persons—two-thirds of them GC alumni—were present for a conjoint Eastern Mennonite-Goshen-Hesston colleges meeting at Laurelville Mennonite Church Center, April 3.

After a roast beef buffet and salad bar, a representative of each college spoke on "The Latest Developments." Goshen's representative was Orville Yoder '61, associate dean. Hesston's representative was James E. Yoder, professor of chemistry, and a '64 graduate of GC.

Fort Wayne area meeting

Forty alumni and friends met for breakfast at Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant on Monday, April 5, to hear J. Lawrence Burkholder speak on "Goshen College and World Citizenship."

Planning the 8 a.m. event were Harvey Driver '30, Allen Graber '64, Duane Jacobs, John C. King '55, Kenneth Miller '54, and Joe Zehr '62.

Other events the same day for Pres. Burkholder were a TV interview telecast by Channel 33 and a speech on his trip to China before the Fort Wayne Rotary Club.

Lancaster, Pennsylvania, area meeting

Catherine R. Mumaw, professor of home economics, spoke to a group of 41 alumni and friends at the Bird-in-Hand Motor Inn Restaurant east of Lancaster, Monday evening, April 19. Her slide-illustrated address centered on the transcultural family studies seminar in Jamaica last fall. Dr. Mumaw is also executive director of the Maternal and Child Nutrition Seminar, to be carried out in Jamaica in August, 1976.

On the local planning committee for the evening were Cal Britsch '69, Ada Mast '63 Hallman, Michael Lambright '68, and Jeanette Eicher '71 Rice.

On the committee to plan next year's GC Eastern Pennsylvania meeting, to serve both Lancaster and Franconia areas, are Sarah Ann Eby '71 and Michael L. Lambright '68.

Two meetings in May

The Chicago area meeting is set for Sunday, May 16, 3 p.m., Lombard Mennonite Church, 563 East Madison, Lombard, Illinois. J. Lawrence Burkholder will be the speaker. A carry-in salad and sandwich supper will follow his talk. Coordinators of the meeting are Sem '70 and Mabel Amstutz '70 Sutter.

The Central and Western Ohio area meeting is Sunday afternoon, May 23, from 5:30 to 8:30, at Whetstone Park of Roses, 3923 N. High Street, Columbus. Speaker will be Pres. Burkholder. Provided will be meat and hot and cold drinks, but each adult will bring table service and a dish to share. Coordinators are Jep '62 and Joyce Metzler '62 Hostetler and Brad '63 and Marilyn Troyer '64 Yoder.

Mini-reunion for '46-ers

Faculty milestones

Body Fluids and Electrolytes: A Programmed Presentation, by Norma Jean Weldy, associate professor of nursing, was recently published in its second edition. The publisher is C. V. Mosby Company, St. Louis.

Theron Schlabach, associate professor of history, has received an academic-year fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities to study religion at Princeton University, 1976-77.

LeeRoy Berry, associate professor of political science, will receive the Ph.D. in political science at University of Notre Dame May 16.

Calvin Redekop, professor of sociology, has been appointed dean and professor of sociology at Tabor College beginning in the fall.

Faculty exchange professors in Poland this spring are Lon and Kathy Sherer, music faculty; Carl Kreider, professor of economics, and Evelyn; and Arthur A. Smucker, professor of chemistry, and Oma.

New faculty are: Ronald J. Milne '67, mathematics; Kenneth Pletcher '70, physical education and basketball coach; Dennis J. and Diane MacDonald, Bible; Stuart Showalter, communication; Shirley Showalter, history and English; Michael L. Yoder '69, sociology, and Sue Ann Roth '66, physical education.

Among the 60 volunteers — counting alumni, parents, faculty and students — to help in the March phonothon were (left to right) Clayton Sutter '43, J. R. Burkholder '52, Wendy Myers, and Janice Mullet '59. Wendy is a freshman from Perkasie, PA; and J. R. Burkholder is a member of the Bible, religion and philosophy faculty.

Phonothon pledges total $18,363

The 1976 Alumni Fund Phonothon, conducted seven evenings in March from Goshen, broke all previous records of number of pledges and amount of dollars pledged.

Pledges were received from 452 alumni and gift amount pledged was $18,363. If this year follows the pattern of past years, more than $18,363 will be received, however, because many alumni who were phoned but did not make a specific commitment will also be responding positively.

Sixty volunteers, under the leadership of phonothon chairman Ralph J. Gunden '50, were the callers. Each gave at least one evening of time; seven gave two evenings of their time.

Volunteers were not only alumni of the Northern Indiana area, but also parents, students, faculty and staff.

Of those who volunteered for one night, the two callers to raise the most pledge dollars were Pat Massanari '71 and Charles Hess '40.

Of those who worked two nights, the two callers to raise the most pledge dollars were Bob Wenger, a parent, and Michelle Yoder, a freshman from West Liberty, OH.

As the Bulletin goes to press, the books for the month of April were closed. Gifts from alumni, July 1, 1975, through April 30, totaled $199,388, an increase of $26,728 from last year. The goal of the 1976 Alumni Fund is $248,000.

To make this year's Fund the greatest in the history of the alumni, Pres. Burkholder is sending a last invitation to support the fund to all non-donors in mid-May. Gifts must be received by June 30 to be counted in the 1976 Fund.

Goshen College has had a profound effect on our lives and gave us, as a family, much of our heritage. For this we will be forever grateful.

W. J. Zehr '55

I have been meaning to write for a long time to tell you how much I appreciated being able to go to Goshen College. I had originally planned to go to a large state university and at the last moment heard of Goshen through my aunt. . . . One thing that impressed me and that I haven't forgotten were the teachers that took such a personal interest in a student (especially Nick Lindsay). . . . Very permanent impressions have been made because of Goshen—a real understanding and love for Mennonite culture, history, and especially music. The whole Anabaptist vision of the kingdom (Dr. Stanley Shenk made sure of that!) . . . and that the kingdom of God is in our midst! . . . I remember Goshen with love.

In a letter printed in the February Bulletin, a loyal alumnus expressed his frustration at continued appeals for money and his belief that alumni can support the college even more significantly by their encouragement of students and their prayers. This challenging letter deserves a thoughtful reply.

I certainly agree that financial contributions are not the most important kind of support Goshen College needs, for without the encouragement and affirmation of its alumni and constituency Goshen College fails to have a purpose for existing. It is unfortunate that requests for money tend to become the only visible appeals going out. They are never intended to badger or accuse, and we regret that impression. Furthermore it is understandable that circumstances vary and not everyone can give a large contribution even though he may want to.

Nevertheless, financial contributions remain the most tangible support for the college since there is no way to tabulate how many people are offering counsel and encouragement. The numbers of supporters on the rolls are significant, for Dan Kauffman tells us that such potential contributors as foundations frequently ask what percentage of alumni contribute on the assumption that a school which does not have its own broad-based support is not a good investment.

It is important to have alumni moral support, but it is also important to have more names of donors on the lists. And even if some of the gifts may be very small, their benefit will be multiplied as they increase the percentage of contributing alumni and thus show tangibly the support we continue to give in many additional ways.

President, Alumni Association

I appreciate the college. I hope you will continue to train people not only for "occupations" but for occupations that can be church related and used by and in the church.

Paul E. Roth '53, M.D.
Killbuck, OH

Thank you for the encouragement you are giving students to learn at least the basics of another language.

Loretta Yoder '73
Montreal, Quebec, Canada

Although I have lived in the Southwest for only a year and a half, you would be surprised how many GC-ers have come to visit or how many I have bumped into accidentally at ski areas. Thank you for providing the type of atmosphere which encourages a feeling of kinship even though a person is far away from that place.

Alumni board expresses thanks to Nofziger

In formal action during its April 10 business session, the executive board of the Alumni Association thanked Daryl Nofziger '64 for his leadership and service as executive secretary.

Nofziger, who has served in the dual capacity as executive secretary and GC director of alumni relations since July, 1974, has resigned to accept a position in sales and service at a Goshen business.

Nofziger's contributions

Under Nofziger's direction, the Alumni Fund increased by $32,000 in one year, the Phonothon effort increased $8,000 in gifts in one year, and Goshen alumni were involved in 18 area meetings in his first year and 17 the second year (an increase of 8 over the preceding years).

In addition, Nofziger inaugurated the Mini-SST to Belize in 1976, the Washington, D.C., Art Seminar in 1976, and the Mini-Marine Biology Term in Florida for alumni and parents in 1975. The Mini-Marine Biology term is re-offered in 1976 because of popular demand.

Nofziger's influence also extended to the alumni Bulletin. He insisted on more news, pictures and features of alumni, their families and their interests and activities.

Nofziger's successor is Alice Metzler '57 Roth. Her appointment is reported elsewhere in this issue.

Other board business

In other discussion, the board heard a report from Provost Henry D. Weaver on budget development at GC; a report from Daniel Kauffman, director of college relations, on gifts and grants to GC; a report from Abner Hershberger, professor of art, on the Washington Art Seminar; and a report from Vernon and Betty Schertz, co-leaders of the Mini-SST to Belize.

The board set Oct. 8 - 9 as Alumni Weekend. High lights will be topical clinics for alumni by college profs and administrators, Alumni Association leaders, and alumni in selected professions. In addition, class reunions, Old Timers Luncheon, the alumni annual dinner, and a varsity soccer game with St. Francis are planned.

Discussion during the board's afternoon session included Alumni Fund appeals, computerization of alumni records, and the founding of annual area meetings where there are growing concentrations of alumni.

The next business session of the board is Alumni Weekend.

Coming in the next month:

The 1976 Alumni Ballot, with ten nominees for five positions on the Executive Board. Your participation, interest, and concern in the affairs of the Alumni Association are needed. Those elected will be installed at the Alumni Annual Dinner, Alumni Weekend, October 8-9.

Coming during the summer:

Full information on Alumni Weekend. The tentative schedule includes a varsity soccer game with St. Francis, class reunions for all classes ending with a 1 or 6, an Old-Timers Luncheon (honoring graduates of the Class of '26 in the company of all those alumni of 1926 and earlier) and the Alumni Annual Dinner.

Dr. Wyse feted

Home economics students feted Dr. Olive G. Wyse, long-time chairperson of the home economics department, at a surprise buffet March 19 that featured her favorite foods and recipes.

The occasion marked the 60th anniversary of the founding of the home economics department and the 50th anniversary of Dr. Wyse's teaching career. She is retiring this spring.

During the after-dinner program short tributes to Miss Wyse pointed up that she is the first woman in the Mennonite Church to receive the Ed.D. degree, and she was the founding foods editor of the church's first magazine for home and family life, Mennonite Community.

One of her career goals was to set up a wide range of courses that uphold the values of family living and homemaking, and the importance of those values in church and community. The courses were open to all students, not limited to home economics students.

In addition to teaching home economics, her career has included physical education instructor, chairperson of faculty social committee, and member of the college athletic committee.

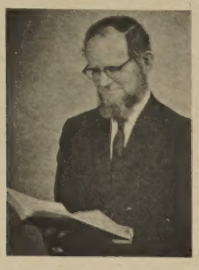
Hartzler speaks



Dr. H. Harold Hartzler, mathematics and physics prof at GC 1937-58, is offering a series of lectures on science and the Bible, upon retirement from Mankato State College June 1.

For more than 30 years such topics as "Evidences of God's Design as Manifested in Astronomy," "The Conflict Between Science and the Bible," "Science and Faith" and "Modern Physics and the Christian Faith" have intrigued Dr. Hartzler. This summer he expects to do the final work for his lectures in order to be ready for engagements in fall and winter.

However, Hartzler's plans call for his first lectures to be in his home community of Allensville-Belleville, PA, in June, where he was born and raised.

For September he seeks speaking invitations in Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Iowa. After two or three months in Europe, he and Mrs. Hartzler will be in Arizona and will be able to accept appointments in that state, New Mexico or California.

Hartzler will consider invitations from churches, schools and colleges and universities, or other interested groups. More information is available from him at 1311 Warren Street, Mankato, MN 56001.

Artist book still available

Mennonite Artists Contemporary 1975 is still available from the Goshen College bookstore.

The book contains information representing 54 living artists who are present or past Mennonites. An example of each artist's work is shown. Several of the artists are Goshen College alumni and faculty.

Mennonite Artists Contemporary makes an attractive addition to any home or church library and would be an excellent gift for the young person with art interests.

The book has an embossed white cover and is $5.00 postpaid.

Art in Italy open to alumni

A 1977 summer art study program in Florence, Italy, is open to alumni as well as students, Abner Hershberger, professor of art, has announced.

The program is two courses. One course, the art study tour, stresses the Florentine Renaissance and the works of Leonardo, Michelangelo, Botticelli, Cellini, Donatello, Raphael, and others.

The second course, media workshop, is a combination of studio sessions in drawing, watercolor or painting, plus guided appreciation of the rich, historic environment of Florence and surrounding cities of Lucca, Pisa and Volterra.

The courses will be offered in summer 1977 under the direction of Hershberger, who is on a sabbatical leave in Italy, 1976-77. More information is available from the Office of the Dean.

It's easier than planting a tree

One of the noblest things a person can do, someone has said, is to plant a small tree that will some day give shade to people he will never know.

Another is to make a bequest to our college to help educate persons not yet born.

When you make a bequest to Goshen College, you may be planting a giant redwood. Goshen has 82 years behind it and many, many years ahead of it. A tree can do a lot of growing in that time.

If the word "bequest" has a somber sound to it, suggestive perhaps of those TV reruns in which the clan gathers to hear the reading of a millionaire's will, let me put it in a brighter light.

A bequest to Goshen can indeed be a clause in a will, but it need not be a millionaire's. The college welcomes bequests of all sizes—and for a multitude of purposes.

Your "bequest" may also take the form of a charitable gift annuity agreement or a pooled income fund. Such a gift made now will give you the benefit of life income, paid to you by the college.

Bequests and other forms of deferred giving represent an important investment in the future of the college. You are invited to write for the booklet just published, "A New Look at Philanthropy: You Receive as Well as Give." It explains all the details simply and briefly.

Will you take a minute to send the coupon? There is never any obligation on your part. And . . . it's easier than planting a tree.

An indispensable tradition

The liberal arts as an academic tradition was born during the Middle Ages. It arose as an integral part of Christendom. It was intended as the way by which the church would seek to understand the world. The study of astronomy, mathematics, logic, literature, ancient languages and philosophy was the church's attempt to come to terms with all of life — the mind, the stars, art, language and logic. The liberal arts enriched the church's theology and added elements of mystery, splendor and beauty to its life.

The Reformation did not change fundamentally the close connection between the church and the liberal arts. No sooner did stern John Calvin ascend the Reformed pulpit than he founded the academy in Geneva. He realized that just as man does not live by bread alone neither does he live by preaching alone. He needs to study the whole realm of creation in order to honor God whose sovereignty extends to all parts of the world. The attitude of the reformers toward the liberal arts was extended even to this notion when the New England Puritans founded Harvard University as an indispensable preparation for the ministry. A sound liberal arts education was a prerequisite to leadership in the churches.

The connection between a church and its colleges

A moment's reflection would indicate that all denominations, and in recent years, especially small "sectarian" groups, have founded liberal arts colleges. These churches are not looking primarily to the educational needs of the nation. State universities have been founded for that purpose. Rather they recognize the indispensable connection between the liberal arts and theology, church leadership, mission strategy, music, art, ethics, denominational identity and theology.

One can say as a general rule that no denomination can survive the passing of its liberal arts colleges. As its colleges succumb to financial pressures, fads, secularism, professionalism, fragmentation, extraneous control, government pressures, generational conflicts and vocationalism, the churches lose a great and long standing resource.

The liberal arts in a materialistic society

But it is well known that the liberal arts today are on the defensive. This is due to numerous factors. Among them are shifts in values and social consciousness. It is a well known fact that our society is a materialistic one in which life is defined and values established under the influence of an all pervasive technology. We are living in a secular age when success is measured largely by the control of nature for production of goods. Our culture is long on means but short on ends. Ours is not a culture that reflects philosophically on the meaning of life. Neither is it an adventurous society intent upon social and intellectual risks. It is a society oriented mainly toward material security. In such a society superficiality and technical sophistication are curiously fused.

In college circles this means that departments of philosophy, ethics, literature, languages, history and art are merely holding their own while disciplines with a technical or practical application are abounding. Current educational journals struggle for solutions that would avoid on the one hand liberal arts "purism" unrelated to life and on the other hand "rampant vocationalism" so closely identified with the social order that it loses the critical function.

Liberal arts and education for Christian service

Goshen has tried to avoid both extremes by emphasizing the liberal arts while offering professional education for a four-year curriculum. Most of its graduates prepare for specific professions. Many are preparing for careers within the medical profession either as doctors, nurses or baccalaureate medical technologists. Others prepare for education, law, the ministry, business, missionary work, social work and a thousand other opportunities for people with a vision for service.

What we are trying to do at Goshen is to prepare people to enter the professions and graduate schools as men and women who have been shaped by the liberal arts in a Christian context. This means that they will have learned "to think," to think in terms of general principles, to use abstractions, to examine life with reference to a system of values, and to have encountered other cultures on the Study-Service Trimester and summer courses in Europe, and to have reflected upon their commitments in light of the Kingdom of God.

The values of liberal arts study in the Christian context

The greatest single value of a liberal arts education is to have something to think about for the rest of one's days. A four-year liberal arts education introduces one intellectually to the great issues of human existence — the nature of reality, the meaning of life, death, order, chaos, free will, determination, language, affections, beauty and power. Those who have looked at these issues on a sustained basis over a period of four years are prepared not only to lead in a profession but to assume a relatively useful position in society.

Another important consideration is the need for leadership in the church. Today there is a critical need for ministers, church administrators, missionaries, theologians and committed lay leaders. Historically such leaders have been prepared by a four-year liberal arts education. Oddly enough it really doesn't matter what one's major is. It's the liberal arts process that seems to make the difference. J. D. Graber, veteran mission leader, majored in mathematics, and J. C. Wenger, a trusted theologian, was a pre-med.

It is therefore incumbent upon Goshen College to remain strong as a liberal arts college providing the ethos within which students, whatever the major, think through in depth their value systems and life commitments. This has happened over the years. Graduates of Goshen are in all parts of the world serving humanity, many of them directly related to the church.

College mottos are usually innocuous. But at Goshen "Culture for Service" is a reality and needs to be affirmed at a time when a materialistic, technically oriented culture pulls in other directions.

About the cover: Robert A. Erck (left), a 1976 graduate in physics/mathematics, and Dennis Kauffman, instructor in physics, are pictured in the Turner Precision X-ray Measurements Laboratory. The study of the sciences is a proper part of the liberal arts, as are also the study of logic, literature, language and philosophy.

Alumni evaluate college experience

By Janice Martin, writing in Record, the campus newspaper

Close to 75 percent of all GC graduates attend one or more years of graduate school. Eight recent grads now in graduate programs agree that GC has prepared them exceptionally well for their graduate study. Registrar John Nyce estimates that between 18 and 23 percent of Goshen College graduates immediately go to graduate school. The percentage of GC students in graduate programs rises dramatically as teachers enter graduate programs for the master's degrees necessary for permanent certification.

Graduate school candidates

Students pursuing medical careers head the number of graduate-school candidates. Donald G. Clemens, chemistry prof, reports that during the past three years, 33 science graduates were admitted to medical school — between 60 and 70 percent of those who applied. This contrasts with the national rate of acceptances, which is 35 percent.

Psychology and sociology majors also frequently aim for graduate study. Psychology prof Duane R. Kauffmann figures that two to four psychology majors directly enter graduate programs each year. Kauffmann found in a study of GC psychology graduates that between the years 1953 and 1970, 15 out of 17 graduates had some additional training in psychology.

A large number of GC grads — now 51 students — study at the Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminaries in Elkhart.

Janice Martin, from Gap, Pennsylvania, was graduated in April with a major in English and co-major in communication. In May she joined the Goshen College staff as assistant in news services.

Except for the medical-school candidates, who face keen competition nationally, most serious applicants for graduate study are admitted fairly easily. "The student who is a more outstanding student in a department, a solid B to A student, will usually be admitted and do well," said John Nyce. To Duane Kauffmann's knowledge, every psychology major in the past nine or ten years has been accepted for graduate study.

Quality of preparation

How well does GC prepare its students for graduate school academically? Ray Hershberger, a 1975 graduate in natural science now at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, felt well-equipped for science study. "Although GC doesn't have very many specialty courses, I did receive a solid basic science background, especially methodology, processes, and approaches to science. I am thankful for the 'liberal arts education.'"

Jon Yoder, a 1975 grad pursuing a doctorate in clinical psychology, says that GC did a pretty fair job of preparing him, considering the small psychology department. "I find myself in about the middle of my class currently. My classmates include people from such well known educational institutions as Dartmouth, Harvard, and Cornell."

In summary, all eight students affirmed that the college maintains high academic standards. Except for a lack of emphasis on necessary research and foreign-language skills, the students felt totally prepared for further education.

Student observations

Reaction to actual graduate study varies. Diane Conrad, a 1975 graduate in natural science, finds medical school "more difficult and time-consuming, but more worthwhile" than undergraduate work. Ray Hershberger also enjoys graduate school: "In college, studies were only one part of the total experience — at times not even the most important. Here, academics are the graduate school experience."

Joan Kreider discovered that med school at the University of Toledo is similar to a "glorified grade school" with scheduled time and no freedom for electives. She misses the perspectives of many different disciplines.

Jon Yoder would not recommend graduate study except for the completely dedicated student. "The work is difficult, time-consuming, absorbing, frustrating, and interesting. The change from college to graduate work was similar to that of breaking into a dead run from a casual jog."

Elizabeth Bender finds that her professors at Indiana University are much less accessible than they were at GC — they spend more time researching and writing than teaching. "I thought profs like Mary Bender and Mary Oyer were the norm. But they are rare."

Have interest, want career. Placement office offers big lift.

By Norman Underwood, writing in Record, the campus newspaper

About the author: Norman Underwood studied at GC last year to be licensed as a teacher of secondary English, with teaching minors in social studies and German. His earlier college work was at DePauw University, which awarded him a B.A.

If students are interested in finding work, J. B. Shenk, director of career services, has the skills and resources to help.

Shenk, whose work includes career guidance, placement, and Study and Work (SAW), has been helping Goshen graduates and non-grads with this difficult area for years.

The career center helps the student find what he or she enjoys. "Now there are even better ways to identify skills and enthusiasms than the previously-used testing methods," Shenk says.

Facts hard to get

"As nearly all fields are no longer making net additions to the number of people employed, there is no clear-cut advantage in one field as compared with another. The student should develop his/her strongest skills," according to Shenk. Nationwide statistics can be misleading. For one thing, they don't often specify needs by geographic areas.

"Individual initiative," Shenk says, "is increasingly the key factor." While job opening notices are received, the job candidate should not rely upon these alone. Eighty percent of jobs that college grads desire are never advertised.

Personal contact recommended

The most valuable approach is personal contact, which Shenk helps job-hunters pursue. He believes this places GC on a par with large campuses where company and institutional recruiters visit.

Shenk's effort is to teach students how to look for a job. Then, with this job-hunting experience, a person may become independent either of GC's placement office or of government or commercial placement agencies.

Even students who have chosen a major field may not know how to look for a job. Some may fear the unknown. Others may feel overwhelmed by the importance of the decision.

Getting the student to think "job"

The big issue in Shenk's mind is how to get a student started. Services of the career center include individual counseling in identifying personal skills and related job areas, help in listing potential employers, job search materials and techniques, and a clearinghouse function for job notices and personal credentials.

Anytime during college, students can begin relating course selections and career interests. They can also try to get some career experience through summer work or SAW. A practicum now is required of every student before graduation to increase employability.

Even after graduation, a former student may register and open a file with the placement office. The only fees charged begin with copying the fourth set of credentials mailed to interested potential employers.

Self-evaluation important

A facet of the job search is for the college student to recognize personal skills and enthusiasms. It can also help to talk with other persons who are earning their living in skill areas which interest the student. These working persons should include both employers and employees.

Shenk is willing to assist not only in making contacts with actual working persons in the sought-for skill areas, but also to assist in information discussions or in job interviews. One of Shenk's goals for the career center is to have each student experience both self-evaluation and some employer interviews.

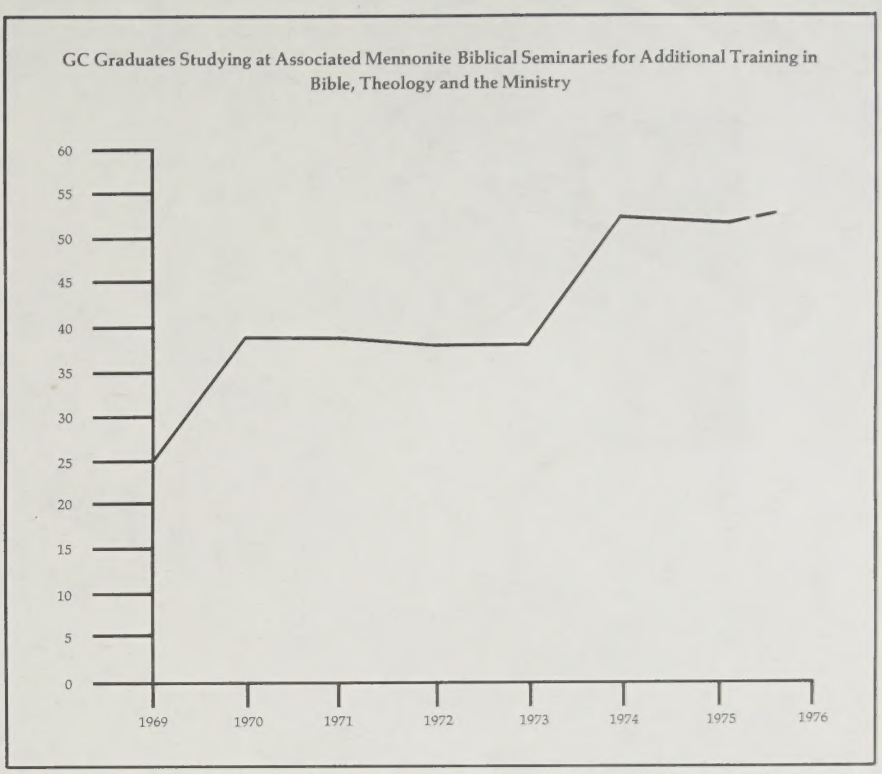
Patience and perseverance

The entire career selection process takes time, effort, ingenuity and perseverance. Shenk has noticed that some seniors tend to wait until the day after graduation before beginning. His advice is to start early and "let your own personal network of friends and relatives know you're looking."

By one's senior year, a student should be ready to begin the job search. Then, the placement office gives timely, useful pointers on writing a resume, compiling a list of employers interesting to the student and acceptable methods to approach those employers.

A senior will also complete the credentials file, which will vary according to the field chosen. For example, the number of forms needed by employers of teachers may be more than those needed by employers in business. The style will also vary.

The time between graduation and the first major job might have become longer in the last few years, according to Shenk. Generally, after ten months nearly everyone has a satisfactory job.



The growing stream of grads to seminary

Dale Schumm, admissions counselor at Goshen Biblical Seminary, reports that an increasing number of GC students are attending seminary.

He explains it, "They seem to be concerned about intensifying their contribution to society as a vital part of their faith in God. They come to seminary at various points in life to reflect on integrating their life and faith and to become more proficient in doing it."

Statistics Schumm has collected show that the number of GC grads enrolling at Associated Mennonite Biblical Seminaries has doubled in the six-year period, 1969-76. That is a fantastic growth rate—an average of 12.25 percent compounded annually each year.

One underlying reason why GC graduates respond so positively to seminary study may well be their strong academic background in the liberal arts.

A solid undergraduate base containing courses in psychology, sociology, anthropology, general sciences, education, philosophy, history, Bible, and modern and ancient language prepares a student well for entrance to seminary.

More important, competence in and understanding of such areas qualifies the student for a wide variety of Christian ministries and services that he or she may enter upon completion of seminary studies.

Bilingual bicultural program recognized nationally

In the bilingual-bicultural program, SST-ers develop skills to be teachers in communities with multicultural populations.

Goshen College's bilingual-bicultural program for teachers won one of the five national awards at the annual meeting of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education this past spring.

GC's winning entry was the Study-Service Trimester (SST) in Latin America and how it assists teachers in developing skills to assume teaching roles in bilingual-bicultural communities.

S. L. Yoder, chairman of teacher education, explains that the primary objectives for teacher education students in SST are to understand and respect cultures and to gain language facility in a setting where English does not communicate. He added that the program also develops tolerance for differences and skills to function in bilingual-pluralistic societies.

Several components

Although SST is a major part of the bilingual-bicultural program, there are other important components. Before SST, elementary education majors study child development and behavior, explore learning and teaching techniques, take courses in cultural anthropology and linguistics, and become familiar with curriculum materials used in Latin American schools.

On SST, students live in the homes of nationals. They are supervised in study and field experience by a Goshen faculty member. They spend seven weeks of study in language, history, government, the arts and education. The second half of the 14-week term the student is in an unsalaried job in a school or a children's home to work under the supervision of nationals.

Upon returning from SST, students draw from their experiences and collection of artifacts to prepare for student teaching. Students in the bilingual-bicultural program do their teaching internships at schools where there are multicultural populations.

Endorsement in bilingual education offered

A student who completes the program and demonstrates competence in language and social-cultural understandings is certified in elementary education with endorsement in bilingual education.

Placement for students with the bilingual-bicultural qualifications has been good. Last year 95 percent of GC's teacher education graduates found positions in communities where either bilingual or bicultural skills were considered essential.

Of the five colleges to receive awards, GC was the smallest. Further, GC was the only private school. The other winners were University of Vermont, Ball State University, University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, and City College of the City University of New York.

The American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education is the only national voluntary association of institutions working toward continuous improvement of instructional personnel preparation. About 820 colleges and universities are members. This was the twelfth year it made awards.

Representatives named in each conference

Goshen College representatives have been selected in each of its constituent district conference areas for next year.

The assignment of the representatives is part time throughout the year beginning July 1, 1976, and continuing through June 30, 1977. Each of the representatives will spend the equivalent of 10 days for the college during the year.

The selection of conference representatives makes it possible for Paul M. Gingrich, GC church relations director, and his wife, Ann, to lead the Study-Service Trimester (SST) units in Belize, Central America, next year.

In carrying cut their assignments, the persons will do a variety of tasks, as agreed upon in their appointment. These may include: (1) visit pastors and congregational leaders to tell what the college offers the church in undergraduate programs and continuing education for adults, (2) seek congregational support, advocacy and gifts, (3) seek assistance from pastors to find students in local congregations and communities who might be interested in attending GC, (4) present the values of Christian higher education to pastors and congregational leaders, and (5) assist students in getting information about curricula and costs at church colleges.

In addition, each representative will be available and interested to hear suggestions from laypersons and pastors on how GC can strengthen its program and services. Each will be in contact with the college to see that the concerns are heard.

Coordinating the work of the representatives will be John H. Mosemann. Mosemann, a retired pastor of the College Mennonite Church and former missionary to Africa, has accepted a half-time assignment on campus to direct church relations during 1976-77.

The persons who will be serving as representatives are:

A New Program: Co-Major in Tropical Agriculture, by C. Frank Bishop '40, professor of biology. An illustrated lecture and discussion on Dr. Bishop's study and research in tropical agriculture this past year under a Lilly Fellowship, and the development of the co-major in tropical agriculture.

Are We Doing What We Claim to be Doing in Education? by Karl Massanari '36, former director of teacher education at GC and now in Washington, D.C., as associate director, American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, and director, Performance Based Teacher Education Project. Discussion will feature the potential of competency-based education for improving teacher education, with particular reference to the education of professional school personnel.

Drama at Goshen College: Heritage and Direction, by Roy H. Umble '35, professor of communication. Presentation will include a description of the new drama center and discussion of what will happen in the new building. Also, the Goshen College Players will present brief scenes from the fall play, "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," by Lawrence and Lee, to be given on campus October 22-24.

The Turner Precision X-ray Measurements Laboratory, by Robert C. Buschert '48, professor of physics, and Dennis Kauffman '68, research fellow. This laboratory carries on the world's most accurate X-ray studies of defects and impurities in highly perfect silicon and quartz crystals. Members will present a brief history of the laboratory, outline its operation and goals, and conduct a tour of the facilities. You will also have an opportunity for informal dialogue with the staff.

African Arts, by Mary Oyer '45, professor of music. Presentation from her studies in African music and visual arts in East Africa and several West African countries during the summer of 1971, sabbatical leave, 1972-73, and most recently her study in Africa this past summer, 1976.

8:00 am-5:00 pm . . Ceramic Sculpture and Pottery Exhibit by William Kremer, assistant professor of art at University of Notre Dame, in the Art Gallery, Good Library.

9:00 am-12 noon . . . . . The College bookstore will be open if you are interested in GC athletic shirts, jackets, mugs, or books.

12:00 noon . . . . . Old Timers Luncheon in Honor of the Class of '26 will be hosted by President and Mrs. Burkholder in the Fellowship Rooms of the College Mennonite Church. All alumni before and including 1926 are invited, and recognition will be given the 1926 graduates. Invitees are guests of the College.

12:00 noon . . . . . Class Reunions

Special note: This invitation is open from all classes. You are welcome and invited to the reunion of the class you identify most closely with.

For example, suppose you started with one class, then interrupted college and returned much later to be graduated. You are still most welcome at the reunion of the class you started with, even though you were graduated with another class and may not have received an invitation to the reunion from the class you started college with.

If you will notify the Alumni Office of the class you wish to be identified with, the records will be adjusted so you will receive future mailings.

1931 Arts 117 in the Home Economics department. Lucile Miller Miller and Nellie Miller Ebersole in charge of arrangements.

THE 1976 ALUMNI HONOR ROLL

Thank you for another year in the black

J. Lawrence Burkholder

We have just closed the books for the 1975-76 fiscal year. I am happy to report that for the 37th year in succession we have come through in the black. The surplus is small but the economic stability of the institution remains intact.

On behalf of the faculty, staff and student body, I wish to thank you as alumni for your excellent support. This year, despite the fact that there were no matching incentives, the alumni increased its giving by $4,244.59 to a total of $236,345.81.

A significant improvement lay in the number of donors to the annual fund. This past year 3,511 alumni contributed — up 643 donors from 1975. This is an excellent achievement. I am sure that it would be envied by many other colleges.

Where did your money go? For quality teaching. What specifically does that mean? It means that your contributions helped support faculty (their salaries and benefits) and the myriad of activities that makes the classroom alive and vibrant — faculty research, instructional materials such as films, tapes, three-dimensional models and visual aids, professional journals and memberships and attendance at professional meetings. Without your gifts and gifts from the church, community and friends, Goshen College could not provide the quality of teaching that it does.

And here is a suggestion. Most of you are not in a position to contribute as much as $2,500 per year. However, if you would be successful in influencing the decision of a qualified student to come to Goshen, you would have made the monetary equivalent of about $2,500. Sometimes all it takes are a few good words about your alma mater.

J. Lawrence Burkholder
President, Goshen College

We want it to be right

Every effort has been made to be accurate in the preparation of the many honor rolls of contributors to the 1976 Fund for Quality Teaching, the honor roll of volunteers, and the statistical summaries.

If your name has been omitted, or if it or other information is listed incorrectly, the Office of Alumni Relations and the Bulletin staff hope you will be understanding and report the error and the correct information.

The lists published here were prepared in early July. Since that time, a number of contributors have married, remarried or died. Again, the staff trusts you will understand the original information.

Class report 1976

A word of explanation about this table: The honor roll of names in this issue recognize all alumni givers, whether the gift was received for the 1976 Alumni Fund for Quality Teaching or for a special, designated purpose. However, this table includes only the gifts for Quality Teaching, the theme of the 1976 Fund. The number of givers, the total amount of gifts and percentage of participation reflect only gifts from alumni to the 1976 Fund.

Honor roll for 1977 now under way

If you would like to join the 1977 honor roll, all you need to do is to make a gift to Goshen College through the Alumni Fund for Quality Teaching.

The 1977 Fund is being conducted during the college's fiscal year, July 1, 1976, through June 30, 1977. All gifts received during this 12-month period will be listed on next year's honor roll.

Your gift may be cash, check, or in the form of securities, real property, objects of art, or books. When the annual report 1977 is published, your name will be listed, but not the amount of the gift.

Remember, every gift of any sort or size is deeply appreciated and promptly acknowledged.

Honor roll for 1976 closed June 30

The fiscal year for Goshen College is July 1 through June 30. If your gift was intended for the 1976 Alumni Fund but was received after July 6, 1976, it is being counted in the 1977 Fund for Quality Teaching.

The college's auditors require the books to be closed during the first few days of July. However, gifts received through July 6 in response to last year's alumni fund effort were counted in the 1976 fund.

Alumni families probe marine mysteries during mini-seminar

Mini-marine biology seminars for alumni and families were held June 7-13 and June 14-20 at GC's marine biology laboratory station, Layton, FL. One high light was collecting a variety of specimens and shells (as Prof. C. Franklin Bishop quips, "The family that collects together, stays together"). (Above) Profs. Jon Roth (left) and Bishop (both in water) point out the barnacles and algae that commonly grow on rocks along the shore before leaving on a foray. On the pontoon boat are (left to right) Becky, Jerry and Weldon Troyer, Marilyn Barkley, Rick and Frances Troyer, Robert and Doris Ebersole, and Matthew Barkley. (Below, left) Microscopic animals and single-celled plants caught by a plankton net are enjoyed in the marine laboratory by (l. to r.) Roger, Brad, Charlene, Stacy and Stephanie Haines, with Prof. Bishop's help. (Below, right) (l. to r.) Prof. Roth meets Frances and Jerry Troyer, Stacy Haines, and Becky Troyer, just back from snorkeling, and tells them about the fascinating lives of what they have caught.

Churches make gifts

Goshen College publicly for the second consecutive year recognizes those congregations who made gifts from their stewardship program or from offerings during the college fiscal year ending June 30, 1976. Last year gifts totaling $234,580, for an increase of 20 percent, were received for current operations. The congregations are grouped by conference.

If your college calls, don't hang up

Last March 60 GC alumni, parents and current students, under the leadership of Ralph J. Gunden '50, launched a seven-night phonothon from the offices of the Salem Bank and Trust Company, in downtown Goshen. The effort turned out to be a record breaker.

	1976	Comparison	1975
Calls scheduled	1,866	+ 306%	460
Pledges made	304	+ 96%	155
Total pledge gifts	$14,969	+ 91%	$ 7,815
"Maybe will give" gifts	130	+ 171%	48
Total "Maybe" gifts	$ 7,928	+ 310%	$ 1,935
Gifts from "No answer" calls	60	+ 131%	26
Total "No answer" gifts	$ 2,396	+ 109%	$ 1,145
Total Phonothon gifts	$25,293	+ 132%	$10,895

(Gifts reported above are directly attributable to the phonothon or to reminders sent to phonothon prospects.)

A friendly competition was set up in which a grand prize of a $250 scholarship would go to the person raising the highest amount of pledge money during the phonothon. Persons working more than one evening received ceramic prizes, as did the person who raised the most pledge dollars each evening.

Winner of the scholarship went to J. Robert Wenger, of Elkhart, father of Kathy Wenger, a GC junior. Those working more than one evening were Albert Hornberger '57, Ronald Meyer '75, and students Marvin Marks '79, Wendy Jo Myers '79 and Michelle Yoder '79. Those raising the most pledge dollars in an evening and receiving prizes were Charles Hess '40, Nellie Miller Ebersole '31, Willard Martin '57, Maynard Good '56, Vernon D. Yoder '59, Patricia L. Massanari '71, and Clayton Sutter '43.

Donors of the money for the prizes were W. Frank and Mary Jones '35 Miller, of Boise, Idaho.

Ralph J. Gunden '50 (standing) chaired the 1976 phonothon campaign and organized volunteers from among alumni, faculty, parents, and students.

Grand prize for highest overall pledge total in the phonothon went to J. Robert Wenger (right), pictured with daughter Kathleen, a junior, and J. Lawrence Burkholder. The award was a $250 scholarship at GC.

Memorial and tribute gifts were made last year

Gifts to Goshen College memorialized or were in tribute to 20 alumni and 19 friends of the college in 1975-76.

Some gifts were to memorial or tribute funds set up in previous years; some were designated for library books, with a special bookplate affixed in each volume. Other gifts may become a part of memorial professorship funds, memorial scholarship funds, or a special designated project.

A memorial or tribute gift, in whatever amount, is a fine tribute which forms a lasting association with Goshen College, and provides a continuous benefit to generations of students.

A total of $6,607 was gratefully received from 144 contributors through the Tribute and Memorial Gift program during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1976.

An aggressive information program is planned for 1976-77 to increase alumni awareness of the Memorial and Tribute Gift Program. A summary of the year, in relation to the 1974-75 year, is tabulated below:

	1976	Comparison	1975
Number of persons memorialized or paid tribute to	39	-32%	57
Number of gifts	144	-39%	237
Total Gifts	$6,607	-45%	$11,971
Average gift	$45.88	- 9%	$ 50.51

More information and details about memorials and tributes are immediately available from Daniel Kauffman '46, director of college relations, Goshen College, Goshen, Indiana 46526.

Volunteers give many hours to GC

This issue of the Bulletin shows that Goshen College is people. That theme is important not only in making gifts to the college, but also in being responsive to a wide variety of alumni responsibilities that may—or may not—directly involve raising funds.

For example, some persons gave tremendous energies to coordinating details for class reunions or arranging regional meetings. Others gave many hours to executive board responsibilities, committee meetings, and meetings of sub-committees. Still other volunteers were involved in Parents Committee functions and leadership. A number also gave one or more evenings to the 1976 Phonothon campaign, which broke all past records of telephone campaigns.

All their hours and expressions of good will total up to a significant sum of voluntarism. All of it has been essential to the health and ongoing programs of the college.

The 170 persons listed below include alumni (class year indicated), students (intended year of graduation included), faculty (alumni), non-alumni parents, and non-alumni faculty and staff.

Parents and friends make 193 gifts

In its second year, the Parents Program expanded to 193 gifts, 65 of them from parents not former students of Goshen College.

The list of contributors printed here includes non-alumni parents (alumni parents are included with their respective classes) and friends of the college (designated with an asterisk) who made gifts to the 1976 Fund for Quality Teaching.

Special mention is due Ralph and Betty Martin. As co-chairpersons of the Parents Committee, they gave leadership to the Parents Fund effort. They were rewarded by sizable gains in the year-end totals.

	1976	Comparison	1975
Parents Fund contributors	258	+ 31%	193
Parents Fund gifts	$49,439	+ 25%	$39,396
Alumni parents contributors	193	+ 20%	161
Alumni parents gifts	$38,781	+ 28%	$30,231
Non-alumni parents contributors	65	+103%	32
Non-alumni parents gifts	$10,658	+ 16%	$ 9,165

Gifts from the parents and friends in the list here totaled $14,074 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1976.

More corporate matching gifts received in 1976

The 1976 Fund year saw an increase in number of matching corporate gifts to Goshen College. Each corporate matching gift is the direct result of an employee's gift, and is a distinctive way for a corporation to express its thanks to the college for the alumnus-employee's preparation that it is now benefitting from.

The growth in the matching gift program is summarized below:

	1976	Comparison	1975
Number of contributions	38	+ 36%	28
Number of corporations participating	30	+ 36%	22
Total corporate matching gifts	$7,195	+ 8%	$6,634

Over 500 U.S. corporations offer matching gift programs. Some restrict their matching dollars to employees who are alumni and who are supporting their alma mater. Many others, however, extend their matching programs to any employee, with no requirements as to previous college attendance.

A list of companies and more information may be obtained by writing to Daniel Kauffman '46, director of college relations, Goshen College, Goshen, Indiana 46526.

Estate and deferred gifts total over $400,000

In addition to outright current gifts received from July 1, 1975, to June 30, 1976, estate gifts and deferred gifts to Goshen College amounted to $407,947. This total represents gifts from 34 persons, 16 of whom are alumni.

A major incentive for donors to make deferred gifts last year was the final year of the Lilly Endowment's dollar-for-dollar "challenge" to increase Goshen College's permanent endowment by $500,000. Responding to this, many donors specified permanent endowment for the gift portion of their deferred gift, and saw their gifts double in size, since the Lilly foundation gave $1 for each donor's dollar. As a result, GC's permanent endowment is $1 million more today than it was before the "challenge" was inaugurated.

	1976 Fund	Comparison	1975 Fund
Estate gifts: Contributors	9	- 40%	15
Estate gifts: Total	$168,082	13%	$149,194
Deferred gifts: Contributors	25	108%	12
Deferred gifts: Total	$239,863	115%	$111,312
Grand Total: Contributors	34	26%	27
Grand Total: Gifts	$407,947	57%	$260,506

Information about bequests and varied life-income plans is provided through the Office of Special and Deferred Giving, directed by Gordon R. Yoder '51, and the quarterly publication, Heritage Newsletter.

My education has been valuable to me. The cultural experience I gained during Study-Service Trimester and Junior Year Abroad helped me to understand the importance of trying to fit into the culture of the people where I live instead of imposing my ways on the society and expecting to be treated as if I were back home.

Lynn Blosser '73
Harveyton, KY

I love Goshen dearly. I don't feel that the education, training, and experience I received at Goshen could be matched anywhere else in the country.

Facilitation training in science available to women

Career facilitation training for women who currently hold bachelor's or master's degrees in biology, chemistry, computer science, engineering, mathematics and related areas of science is available at the University of Notre Dame. Women who received their last degree in one of these areas no less than two years and not more than 15 years before acceptance in the project are eligible.

No tuition is charged for this training program which is sponsored by the National Science Foundation for Women in Science and conducted by Notre Dame's Department of Civil Engineering. Four different 12-week training sessions are scheduled to begin approximately as follows: Jan. 17, 1977; May 30, 1977; Sept. 5, 1977; and Jan. 16, 1978.

The program is a multifrontal approach to update each woman's training to a level expected of a current graduate in her degree field, and to develop the skills necessary for her to enter and complete successfully a graduate training program in environmental health engineering and science. Training will be accomplished through faculty lectures, seminars, tutorial assistance, specially developed mini-courses, audit of formal courses, research participation and independent study. All library, computing, recreational and research facilities at Notre Dame will be available. Close contact and interaction with the existing graduate program in environmental health engineering will further aid in the training of each woman participant. Participants will be expected to enter directly into graduate training or employment upon completion of the training program.

The program will be conducted by Dr. Lloyd H. Ketchum, Jr., project director and assistant professor of civil engineering. Interested participants may direct inquiries to Dr. Ketchum at the Department of Civil Engineering, University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, IN 46556, or phone (219) 283-6173.

Smiths establish scholarship

Verna and Willard H. Smith

Willard H. and Verna Smith, both retired professors at Goshen College, have set up a scholarship for students majoring in United States history and studies at the college.

J. Lawrence Burkholder, president of Goshen College, announced the scholarship in June. He said Dr. and Mrs. Smith wanted to do something to encourage upperclass students to concentrate in American history and studies.

Burkholder pointed out that Dr. and Mrs. Smith "believe that the growth and development of human freedom, liberty and equality is one of the grand themes of history."

He continued, "The Smiths believe that the United States has made an important contribution in that development. Therefore, they have set up a scholarship as a token of their appreciation for the enjoyment of these freedoms."

Because the Smith ancestors came from the Old World to the New many years ago to secure and enjoy these liberties, the scholarship memorializes their parents, John J. and Catherine E. (Smith) Smith, long-time residents of Eureka, Illinois, and Daniel and Fanny (Conrad) Graber, long-time residents of Washington County, Iowa.

The awards will be known as the Smith United States History and Studies Scholarship. It will be available to juniors and seniors. There will be two awards annually and the amount will range from $800 to $1000 each.

As a historian, Dr. Smith has approached United States history from the position of Carl B. Schurz (1829-1906). It was Schurz who proclaimed, "Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; when she is wrong I will help make her right."

One of the lifelong concerns of the Smiths has been that the country's domestic policy also be one of justice to all groups. Dr. Smith has encouraged students to study United States history and institutions objectively, critically and constructively, both strengths and weaknesses, with the view of increasing the strengths and diminishing the weaknesses.

Dr. Smith, a member of the Goshen faculty 42 years, is professor emeritus of history. Mrs. Smith, 40 years on the faculty, is assistant professor emerita of Spanish. Both retired from teaching in June, 1972, and live on South Eighth Street, Goshen.

The first scholarship award will be made in the fall of 1976. The exact amount of the award will depend on investment income.

Fall Campus Preview

New Faculty

Twenty-four new faculty members, including three husband and wife teaching teams, are joining GC this year.

Stuart Showalter will be associate professor of communication. He received the B.A. from Eastern Mennonite College in 1967, the M.S. from Ohio University in 1969, and the Ph.D. from the University of Texas in 1975. Showalter has reported for and copy-edited the Daily News-Record of Harrisonburg, VA, served as director of public information at EMC, and has been a director of Mennonite Broadcasts, Inc., since 1970.

Shirley Hershey Showalter will be assistant professor of English and history. She was graduated from Eastern Mennonite College in 1970 and received the M.A. from the University of Texas, where she is now a doctoral candidate in American studies.

Beginning January 1977 Dennis J. and Diane MacDonald will be assistant professors of Bible and religion. Diane will also serve in campus ministries. Dennis, a graduate of Bob Jones University, has done postgraduate work at Wheaton College, Princeton Seminary, and Trinity Evangelical Divinity School. He received the M. Div. from McCormick Theological Seminary in 1974, and is now a doctoral candidate at Harvard Divinity School. Diane received the M.A. from Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, and will receive the M.Div. from Harvard Divinity School in 1976.

John D. and June Alliman Yoder will share one full-time position with campus ministries. In addition, June will serve as counselor on the personnel staff and John will be teaching. Mrs. Yoder received the B.A. from GC in 1967 and the M.A. from the University of Iowa in 1970. She has been director of housing, associate director of student services, foreign student advisor, associate chaplain, and part-time instructor of drama at Coe College. Mr. Yoder was graduated from GC in 1965 and received the M.A. from the University of Michigan in 1968. He is currently a Ph.D. candidate in American and British literature since 1800 at the University of Iowa, where he has been a research assistant and teacher.

Judy Wenig, who will join the faculty as assistant professor in art, received the B.A. and M.F.A. from Bowling Green State University. She has taught art at Northridge High School in Middlebury, IN, and courses in sculpture and design on a part-time basis at Goshen College.

Michael Yoder, a 1969 GC graduate in sociology, will be assistant professor of sociology beginning January, 1977. He has studied sociology since 1972 at the University of Wisconsin, where he received the M.A. in 1973 and is currently a Ph.D. candidate. He taught English as a foreign language in Brazil for two years under the Mennonite Board of Missions, and has received research training under the National Institute of General Medical Sciences since 1972.

Kenneth Pletcher returns to GC as instructor of physical education. From 1972 to 1975 he taught physical education courses, coordinated intramural athletics, and coached J.V. basketball, varsity golf, and cross country at Goshen College. He has also taught physical education one year in Wa-Nee schools, Nappanee, IN, and has directed middle school intramurals, basketball, and track. He was graduated from GC in 1970, and has done graduate work at Indiana University.

Alice Roth joins the faculty as director of alumni relations. She received the B.A. from GC in 1957, and has done a year of graduate study toward the M.A. in the sociology of African religions at the University of Ghana, Accra. She has also studied at Goshen Biblical Seminary and at Drake University. Mrs. Roth is a former news editor of the Independent-Observer, a weekly in Scottdale, PA. She has served in literature development in Ghana, and from 1973 to 1976 was communications coordinator and administrative assistant with Mennonite Board of Education in Elkhart.

David Harley will be associate professor and director of social work education. He was graduated from GC in 1964 and from University of Pennsylvania School of Social Work in 1966 with the M.S.W. Since 1969 he has been a psychiatric social worker in Allentown, PA, where he has supervised clinical services and practiced child and family therapy. He is also a certified Parent Effectiveness Training instructor, and has done postgraduate training in transactional analysis.

Ronald Milne will be assistant professor of mathematics. After graduation from Goshen College in 1967 until 1970 he taught math at Morsoriot Teachers College in Eldoret, Kenya, under the Mennonite Central Committee Teachers Abroad Program. He then attended Michigan State University and received the M.A. in 1972. He just completed another three years of teaching, this time at H.H.I. Secondary School, in Blantyre, Malawi. He was also the Mennonite Central Committee director for Malawi.

Sue Ann Roth, a 1966 GC graduate, will be assistant professor of physical education. She received the M.A. from the University of Oregon, and has had additional graduate training at the University of New Hampshire and at George Williams College. From 1966 to 1968 she taught in Middlebury, IN, community schools, and from 1969 to 1976 in Stryker, Ohio.

Helen Liechty Glick is acting registrar. Following her graduation from GC in 1969, she taught in the American School of Kinshasa, of Zaire. She has been co-leader of five Study-Service Trimester units in Nicaragua, El Salvador, and Honduras from 1972 to 1974.

Janice Martin will be assistant to news services. She was graduated with the B.A. in 1976 from GC with a co-major in English and communication. She interned in information services with Mennonite Board of Missions in Elkhart, IN.

Ruth Elizabeth Krall is returning to GC as associate professor of nursing. She received the B.S. in Nursing from GC in 1962 and taught at GC 1965-67. She has received the M.S. in nursing from the University of Cincinnati and has been director of nursing and program coordinator at Kern View Community Mental Health Center and Hospital, Bakersfield, CA, and assistant professor psychiatry and nursing at the University of Arizona and Arizona Medical Center.

Joyce Eicher Bedsworth, a 1972 GC grad, will be instructor in nursing. She has been director of nursing at Mennonite Hospital, Aibonito, PR, and a nurse at High Park Physicians, Goshen, IN, and in the intensive care unit of the Elkhart (IN) General Hospital.

Cheryl Weldy Martin, a 1968 GC grad, will be instructor in nursing. She has been on Goshen (IN) general hospitals, North Penn Hospital and Grand View Hospital in Pennsylvania, and Mennonite Hospital in Aibonito, PR.

Martha Detweiler Savanick, a third instructor in nursing, is a 1973 GC grad and has worked as a psychiatric nurse at Penn Foundation for Mental Health, Inc., in the intensive care unit at Grand View Hospital, and at Stroud Manor Nursing Home, all in Pennsylvania.

Three persons are joining the faculty as head residents. Kathy Miller Egenberger, who received the B.A. from GC in 1974, has worked as a resident counselor at Lexington House, Elkhart, IN, and on the staff of the Elkhart County Welfare Department.

Phyllis Imhoff Wulliman, a 1971 GC grad, has attended Northwestern University, Illinois State University, Illinois Central College and Mennonite Biblical Seminary, has taught music in Illinois school districts and piano at Goshen College. She has also served as houseparent in GC's LIFE program.

Ronald E. Wyckoff, who was graduated from Rio Grande College (Ohio) in 1971, has been director of financial aid and director of student activities at his alma mater, on the residence hall and student financial aid staffs at Marietta College, and a lead staff person in Outspokin', of the Mennonite Board of Missions, Elkhart, IN. He is an M.A. candidate at Ohio State University.

Phyllis Ewert, assistant professor of business education, is a 1968 grad of Tabor College. In 1969 she received the M.S. in business from Kansas State College of Emporia. She has taught at Kansas State College of Emporia, Northwest Missouri State University, and the University of Wisconsin.

John H. Mosemann is director of church relations on a part-time basis. A former missionary, missions leader and pastor, he served the College Mennonite Church, Goshen, 1950-75, the Yellow Creek Mennonite Church, Goshen, IN, 1947-50, and as president of the Mennonite Board of Missions, Elkhart, IN, 1948-71. Earlier he was a missionary in East Africa and director of Civilian Public Service camps during World War II.

Campus Ministries Team

Campus Ministries at GC will again be staffed by a team of persons in 1976-77. The concept of a team makes possible a variety of gifts for meeting the needs of an increasingly diverse student body.

The team includes: J. Lawrence Burkholder, campus ministries resource; Art Smoker, campus minister and team leader; John and June Yoder, campus ministers; Melba Nunemaker, coordinator of office services; Becky Koerner and Carol Spicher, associates in campus ministries; Paul Keim and Colleen Merillat, student assistants.

The team has two objectives: first, to promote Christian growth, maturity, discipleship, and commitment; and second, to facilitate the ministry of students, faculty, and staff to one another, in the community, and with the church.

The program growing out of these objectives will include two chapel services a week focusing on worship, celebration and praise along with teaching and renewed commitment. Small groups will give students the opportunity to discuss their Christian pilgrimage with their peers and find supportive relationships. Students are encouraged to worship, fellowship and learn with local congregations. Seminars and workshops will explore issues of special interest; Bible studies will provide informal group opportunities to analyze and interpret Christian faith. The staff will be available to counsel personally with students in their quest for increased spiritual awareness and self understanding.

Exhibitions Announced

William Kremer opens the gallery year Sept. 12 with an exhibition of ceramic sculpture and pottery. He is assistant professor of art at University of Notre Dame and operates his own ceramics studio in Michigan. His exhibit closes Oct. 10.

Jay Bumbaugh, a member of the art faculty at Bluffton College, will exhibit watercolors, drawings and small sculptures Oct. 24 through Nov. 21.

A one-person exhibition of abstract expressionist painting by Erma Martin Yost will be the show Nov. 28 through Dec. 19. Ms. Yost, a native of northern Indiana, currently resides in New Jersey and exhibits in New York and other east coast areas.

For alumni who haven't been on campus recently, the art gallery is located in the lower level of the Good Library. It is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except Sunday, when the hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday hours are extended until 10 p.m.

One of the highlight area meetings last year was the one-day art appreciation seminar, with a continuing education format, for alumni and spouses of the Washington-Baltimore area. A tour of Hirschhorn Museum was an event of the day. Abner Hershberger '60, of GC's art faculty, was the seminar leader. (Photo by Don White)

Ohioans meet in Columbus

Eighty alumni, parents of current students and prospective students, and friends of Goshen College met for an informal picnic supper at Whetstone Park of Roses, Columbus, Ohio, last May 23.

Speaker for the evening was J. Lawrence Burkholder, president of Goshen College, who reviewed events and developments at the college and answered a variety of questions from the group.

The meeting, serving the southwestern Ohio area, was arranged by Jep '62 and Joyce Metzler '62 Hostetler and Brad '63 and Marilyn Troyer '64 Yoder.

Alumnus Schrock '37 challenges Michiana

A $25,000 "challenge" to Elkhart County community business and industry by Harold A. Schrock '37 stimulated increased gifts or first-time gifts from 73 of the 99 community givers this year.

When the final report was made, gifts for operations from local corporations, firms and men and women of business and the professions totaled $128,020. In addition, $4,397 was received for specified purposes. The list of donors is published in full in the President's Annual Report to the Community.

In addition to the total above are other business/industry gifts amounting to $59,726, resulting from the annual solicitation program of the Associated Colleges of Indiana. Calls are made each year by the presidents of the 18 member colleges and many leaders of the business and industrial community.

Each year these corporate donors are publicly recognized in the Report of Progress of Associated Colleges of Indiana.

	1976	Comparison	1975
Gifts for Operations from Michiana Business and Industry	$128,020	+27%	$100,899
Gifts for Operations from Associated Colleges of Indiana	59,726	-35%	91,961

The college is deeply grateful for the support given to its programs by business and industry.

Just one idea . . .

could change
your plans, and your family's future

Here are two booklets that can make your will creative, thoughtful of heirs, more effective in accomplishing your goals. Both are yours on request.

What You've Always Wanted to Know About Wills . . . but just put off asking

Has Your Will 'Expired'?

Your will doesn't have to be an impersonal, technical treatise. By writing your own will—with your attorney's help—you can provide special bequests, name your own executor, set up a trust fund, surprise a beloved friend, and make a gift to further a cause you believe in—such as Goshen College.

Or perhaps you've asked yourself the question, "How does a will actually work when I die?" That's just one of the questions many people have but don't know whom to ask.

Write for your free copy of one or both of these booklets. There's no obligation.

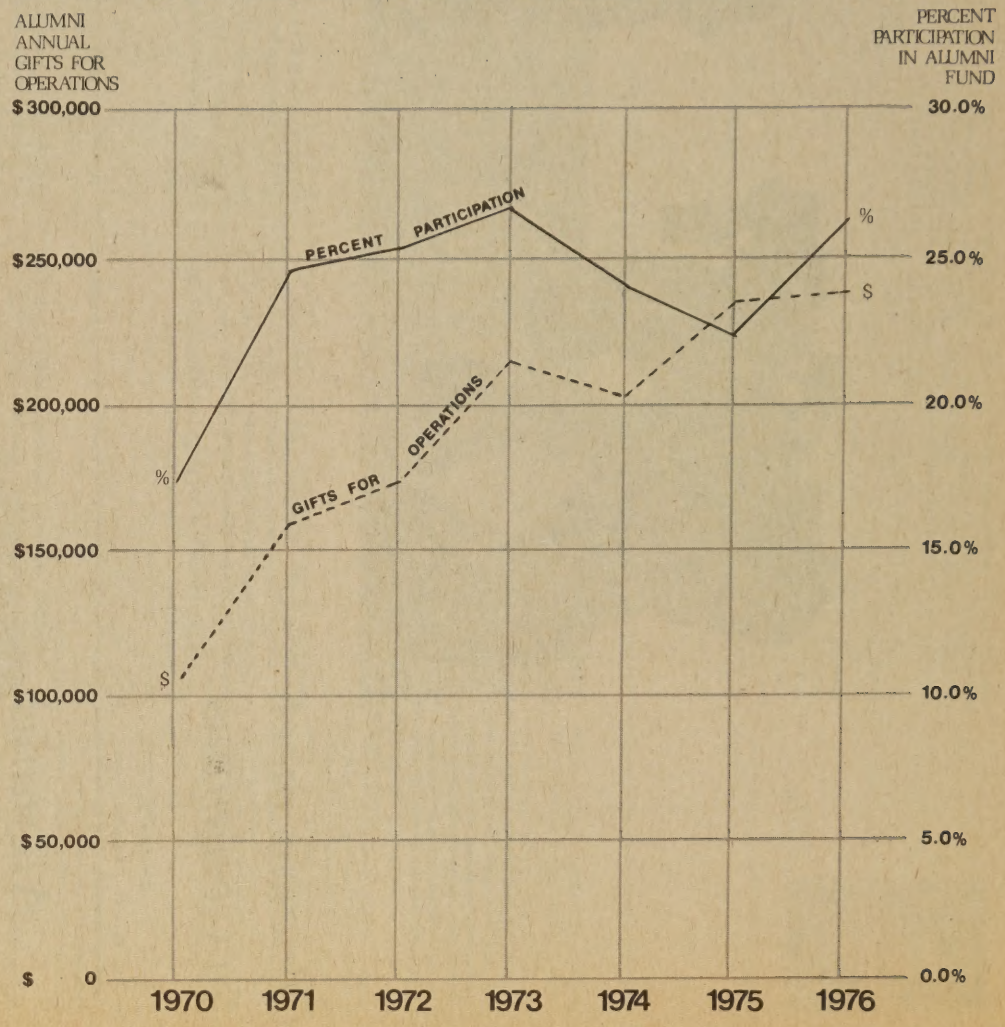
SEVEN-YEAR COMPARISON: GIFTS AND PERCENTAGE PARTICIPATION BY ALUMNI



For want of words

By J. Lawrence Burkholder

J. L. Burkholder is president and professor of Bible and philosophy

We are embarrassed for want of words. We would like to express our wholehearted enthusiasm for an experiment consisting of a number of selected students of different sexes who live under the same roof on or near the campus in Christian community. But to do so we find ourselves using words that bring to mind images that mislead. In popular usage they represent exactly the opposite of what we mean. I refer to such words as "co-ed living," "communal living," etc.

Of course, this is not the first time that Christians have found it difficult to describe who they are and what is unique about their mission. Certainly the Apostle Paul was faced with the problem when he introduced Christianity to pagan society. Christianity was regarded by many as simply another mystery religion. The company of religions was rather dubious company those days since religion was degrading. All kinds of immorality and corruption were associated with temple worship in places like Ephesus and Corinth. Prostitution, deception, corruption, superstition, witchcraft and sensuality were virtually synonymous with religious vitality. To introduce Christianity to the religious realm of Asia Minor even led to the accusation that Christians drank human blood and ate human flesh at their communion services.

We are conscious of the fact that at many private colleges and state universities co-ed living, whatever the theory, simply means an opportunity for young unmarried couples to "live together." The theory, of course, is that "co-ed living" reduces "unnatural barriers" between the sexes and therefore it should be permitted, if not encouraged. Many of us would agree that traditional dormitories foster less than healthful relationships between the sexes. However, we are convinced that when co-ed living is made an option for anybody regardless of moral and religious considerations, it will result in precisely what many campuses are today — moral jungles.

About the cover: (left to right) Terri Plank, Grabill, IN, Rusty Bonham, Holland, PA, and Colleen Merillat, Angola, IN, of Howell House intentional community. One or two meals weekly is an occasion for group interaction.

'Communities' for special purposes

What we have done at Goshen College during the past five years is to permit small groups of selected students to form what we prefer to call "intentional communities." By intentional communities we mean communities that are designed for special purposes.

Our experience with "intentional communities" has been very favorable. Although every student group is different, we have found that students who have this experience grow in many ways: They learn a lot about themselves. The give and take of making decisions, being responsible for buying groceries and giving and taking criticism inevitably bring tears and laughter out of which life is made. Usually intentional living is a demanding experience. Not many students prefer such close living for more than a year — frequently for only a term.

Students also grow socially. Community living demands social adjustments which impinge on personal freedom. Rough edges are removed. Not all is sweetness and light. But at the same time students who feel insecure often find security in community living.

Finally, students generally grow spiritually in intentional communities. Testimonies abound from students for whom Christ became Lord within the discipline of the group. Within the intentional community, discipleship makes sense and scriptural admonitions are applied with rigor. Frequently the spiritual leaders on the campus are living in community.

Governance of communities

But the success of intentional communities at Goshen College is not accidental. Success depends upon the way they are conceived and how they are administered. Here are a few policies which govern them.

1. Only a selected number of students participate in intentional communities. It is not for everyone.
2. Students working to form a community receive permission from the Student Personnel Office. Permission must also be obtained from parents and pastors.
3. Students desiring communal living must submit a statement of purpose to the Personnel Office for approval.
4. Students are required to set up disciplinary procedures.
5. The college reserves the right to discontinue an intentional community in case of failure to keep the rules.

In order to place Goshen's intentional communities in proper perspective one must see them as part of a larger development within the church. As a collegiate phenomenon the "co-ed living" thing lost its dynamics several years ago. It just wasn't that glamorous! It should be seen today as part of a larger search by the church for viable forms of Christian fellowship. It should be seen in continuity with numerous attempts to discover the sociological implications of the body of Christ both inside and outside the Mennonite Church. Preparation in Christian fellowship is supported by the college as an essential implication of education for life in the church.

An experiment in understanding church: intentional communities

"We want a year to sample Christian community," says Colleen Merillat, a junior nursing student from Angola, Indiana. She and Dennis Zehr, a senior from Morton, Illinois, are telling the Bulletin about the Howell House intentional community at Goshen College.

"We expect to face — and meet — many of the problems an established church has. How does a church call forth leaders? How does a church discern gifts? How does one express commitment to the Lord? How does one confront another in love? How does one develop strength for ministry? How does one get a call from the Lord?"

There are other facets. "As a group, we don't want to become ingrown. We want to relate to those outside our group. Keep all our friends. Continue taking part in local churches. Invite friends, parents, pastors, profs to the house."

Dennis sums it up, "We want to test the idea of intentional Christian communities in order to see if it might be a better way for us to work at being the church."

A phrase of many meanings

"Intentional community" is a phrase that means many things to many people. Norman Kauffmann, associate dean of students at GC, defines it:

"It is a self-selected group of students who want to fellowship together. Each is personally committed to spiritual growth and the values upheld by Goshen College. Each is serious about maturity, control, discipline, welfare for self as well as the group."

Howell House is one of three mixed-group communities at GC this year. It gets its name from the college-owned house a block from campus that the group occupies. It gives top priority to spiritual growth, prayer life, the daily walk with each other.

A base of Christian values

The other two mixed-group communities are in living units in Coffman Hall and High Park, both on campus. Just as individuals and congregations differ among themselves, so do groups. Christian values are the base for all groups, and the High Park and Coffman Hall groups emphasize the building of Christian family and interpersonal relationships.

For example, the members of High Park and Coffman Hall talk about their goals this way: What makes a group strong? How does one interact in a group to feel a part of it? How does a group support one of its members in a time of misfortune and adversity as well as in a time of success and achievement? Questions like these are germane to every congregation, but, in fact, are worked at by few.

An experiment in understanding church

Although group living can be limited to men alone, or women alone, some students feel they can experience greater spiritual development, greater awareness of personal and group needs, and greater responsiveness and sensitivity to others if the group is mixed.

"Group living" is not new Group living is nothing new in Goshen College's tradition. GC grads helped found the Mennonite church's voluntary service program in the 1950's. VS-ers, single 18-year-olds and up, lived together from the very beginning in unit houses. A small number of persons in GC's mixed groups are former VS-ers.

The strength of group living lies in each member's ability to self-supervise, self-direct, self-control. The college's formula for setting up a mixed-group unit includes signatures on the student's contract by parent, pastor and former head resident.

Other ways to meet needs

Mixed-group units are only one means toward helping a student reach personal goals. Programs in residence halls and other living groups work at similar purposes, but at different levels.

The goal Associate Dean Kauffmann has for himself and his student personnel staff this year is — to help each student assess how well personal goals of (1) intellectual growth, (2) development of "community" and interpersonal relationships, and (3) development of Christian values and vocation — have been met.

Tough to measure? You better believe it. But it's a personalized, face-to-face way to reach each student. It opens up all the possibilities to each student for a fruitful life in college, a truly mature person after college.

Testimonials about community living

In our house there is such an open and relaxed atmosphere for continual give and take that I know I can look forward to an ever present atmosphere of Christ with and within us which will greatly enrich and increase my own spiritual growth.

— Marcia Wenger, a senior from Goshen, IN

In the past, the thing that most hindered my growth as a Christian was my lack of faithfulness to God. I become excited about the Lord, but I "cool off" because I lack encouragement. I am growing to a much closer relationship with God and I desire more and more for Him to be Lord of all of me. I need the encouragement of other Christians who really are seeking first the Kingdom. They are an invaluable recharger that helps me constantly by renewing my seeking first the Kingdom.

— Rusty Bonham, a sophomore from Holland, PA

In the past I have read, visited and thought about Christian communities. They've always impressed me as being such close bodies of Christ — people who knew each other well and were always available to minister to each other's needs. I'm looking forward to experiencing the Christian fellowship and growth that will come through living with these Christians this year.

— Rachel Greaser, a SAW student from Elkhart, IN

The intentional community that we have at Howell House I see as a real bonus to my education. I expect our living experience to be a valuable introduction into the dynamics of an intentional Christian community.

— Dennis Zehr, a senior from Morton, IL

The term, Christian community, always seemed rather ominous and uninviting to me until last year, when the Lord began teaching me things about the importance of community. We, as a Christ-centered community (or family) are, as the Word of God tells us, the body of Christ dwelling right here on earth right now! How important it is to nourish that body and help it fit together and function properly. I see our mixed community as a chance for me to strengthen my spirit by seeing Jesus living in each of these, my sisters and brothers. Also, I want not only to receive, but to give out freely of what Jesus has so freely given me. I'm looking for our family to help me do what Paul encourages believers to do in Col. 3:16-17 (LB). He says: "Remember what Christ taught and let His words enrich your lives and make you wise; teach them to each other and sing them out in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing to the Lord with thankful hearts. And whatever you do or say, let it be as a representative of the Lord Jesus, and come with Him into the presence of God the Father to give Him your thanks."

— Sharon Landes, a senior from Lansdale, PA

I wish to be committed to a Christian community with whom I can live, grow, share and work through struggles in a way which the dorm life experience has not allowed me to do. I have voluntarily joined with fellow Christians to more fully experience the body of Christ.

— Stephen Good, a junior from Elkhart, IN

In the less than two weeks since I've come, I've seen the Spirit of God in this house. I anticipate the formation and growth together as a body of Christ. Each has different gifts, but all work together as one body. In sharing joys, troubles, confessions, and confrontations, I anticipate a closer growth in my walk with God and in relating with other people.

— Mary Schmid, a junior from Orrville, OH

Contracts and rosters

At least one or two meals together a week is a goal of each community. Pictured is the Howell House group.

Howell House intentional community

Nature and purpose:

A. Growth and support of Christian ideals
   1. More relaxed and natural living situation
   2. Providing an atmosphere conducive to personal growth and strengthening of Christian character.
   3. Community fellowship for calling forth of gifts through:
      a. Honesty with each other
      b. Learning to confront in love as brothers and sisters in our Lord Jesus Christ
      c. Understanding one another
      d. Being accountable to each other as well as God

B. Providing methods of interaction
   1. Having access to a comfortable situation for visitation:
      a. Having meals together as a group once or twice a week
      b. Inviting friends in for fellowship at meals or prayer sessions
      c. Inviting professors and parents for meals
   2. Meetings in which to worship and share as a group on a weekly basis. (This would include opportunity to iron out problems affecting the group as a whole.)

Nature and purpose of the group:
We are a group of Christian students that includes persons with majors in nursing (5), communication (1), social work (1), Bible/religion (2), math (1), and English (1). We are motivated by a common desire for growth and better understanding of individuals, community, and male/female roles. We see mixed groups as a practical experience and setting for developing understanding and healthy attitudes.

Group objectives and goals the outside world in which "community" (particularly in the Christian context) is an option.

2. To affirm, confront and challenge each other as a supportive community in daily living.
3. To serve as a response group as individuals work at long-term decisions.
4. To develop healthy relationships among a few persons with the hope that we will function better as "whole" individuals at Goshen College and in our future homes, churches and communities.
5. To develop better understandings and attitudes of and for the opposite sex as these apply to Christian relationships.
6. To help Goshen College students, administration and others who are concerned realize that mixed group housing can be a continuing and workable living arrangement.
7. To seek, through all the above, an understanding of and a life in the Kingdom of God.

Although we have not previously functioned as a group, four of us have had experience with small group housing.

High Park community

Statement of nature and purpose:
The mixed group we propose consists of six guys and six girls, most of whom are juniors in 1976-77. We feel the people in the group are compatible and will get along well with one another.

It has long been felt by many members of the Goshen College community that male-female relationships on campus are less than desirable. We see mixed group housing as a means of improving the quality of relations by:

1. Providing a small group setting for interpersonal contacts
2. Increasing the quality of male-female interaction
3. Removing the rigid artificial setting of dorm life
4. Providing a supportive base group to serve as the foundation for other relationships.

We also see small group housing as a learning experience serving to facilitate:

1. Our understanding of ourselves
2. Our ability to adjust to one another
3. Familial relationships as opposed to traditional stereotypic understanding of each other
4. Our acceptance of others by exposing us to different ideas, beliefs.

Team of nine meeting spiritual needs

The campus ministries team is (left to right, seated) Melba Nunemaker, coordinator of office services; Becky Koerner, associate in campus ministries; John D. Yoder, campus minister; and Carol Spicher, associate in campus ministries; (standing) June Yoder, campus minister; J. Lawrence Burkholder, campus ministries resource and president of GC; Paul Keim, student assistant; Art Smoker, campus minister and team leader; and Colleen Merillat, student assistant.

Not one individual, but a team of nine working the equivalent of 3.15 full-time 40-hours-a-week persons is the campus ministries staff this year.

Students, ministers and resource persons, associates from the nearby seminaries and a secretary offer a variety of spiritual gifts to the work of the team. Their mission is to minister to the needs of a diverse student body — from 37 states, 5 Canadian provinces, 25 foreign countries; from more than 20 denominations.

The stages of Christian understanding of students are just as varied as the needs. Some, in reference to the Apostle Paul, are like children. "When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child," and "they need milk, not solid food; for everyone who lives on milk is unskilled in the word of righteousness, for he is a child."

Others, however, are on their way to adults, giving up childish ways. As the writer to the Hebrews says, "Solid food is for the mature, for those who have their faculties trained by practice to distinguish good from evil."

The team has two objectives: (1) to promote Christian growth, maturity, discipleship and commitment, and (2) to facilitate the ministry of students, faculty, and staff to one another, in the community, and with the church.

The program of the team was launched on the first day of classes with the opening message of Perspectives. The series of messages, based on the Book of James, extended over nine days.

Also inaugurated in the beginning month of school were two chapel services a week focusing on worship, celebration and praise along with teaching and renewed commitment.

Small groups are giving students the opportunity to discuss their Christian pilgrimage with their peers and to find supportive relationships.

Students are encouraged to worship, fellowship and learn with local congregations.

Seminars and workshops throughout the year will explore issues of special interest. Bible studies are providing informal group opportunities to analyze and interpret Christian faith.

Also, personal counselling is provided by the staff to help students in their quest for increased spiritual awareness and self understanding.

The team invites everyone to pray with them that God will bless, renew and develop each student; and that the team will be sensitive to student needs and God's guiding strength.

This year is special for congregational budget makers

By John H. Mosemann, director of church relations

It was a chance meeting — or was it? Two men sat next to each other and in a few minutes were sharing their identities. The strangeness slowly disappeared as they discovered they were related. One was responsible for finding funds to operate Goshen College, the other an officer of a foundation which had funds to allocate. The relationship discovered was so mutually attractive they explored each other's background and decided to maintain the connection.

It was in such fashion that Goshen College and the Joyce Foundation got acquainted and formed a partnership for this year. The foundation believed in and was impressed by what was going on in this relatively small church-related college in northern Indiana. It saw the need for a stronger financial support-base within the sponsoring denomination. It concluded it could help the Mennonites believe more fully in themselves and in what they were doing at Goshen College.

How did the foundation do it? It said, "Here is $100,000. Tell your people that for every dollar they contribute above last year's giving to Goshen College there will be a matching dollar available from the Joyce fund up to the total of $100,000."

Isn't that something to be told that you have something so good and promising you ought to be investing more dollars in it? And more, to be told if you commit yourselves more fully to this we'll help you too until $100,000 is matched.

This is an unusual challenge to our conferences, to our congregations, and to those members of our churches who, after they have done their fair share in their congregation, want to double the amount of their gift in this way.

Wouldn't we be embarrassed if we defaulted on this? Most certainly. The alternative is simple. As we move up in our dollar commitment to Christian higher education at Goshen College the matching Joyce Foundation funds will be released into Goshen's operating needs for this 1976-77 school year.

A special note to alumni. You should continue your annual giving to the Alumni Fund as in years past. The Joyce Foundation challenge is not intended to channel your annual gift from the Alumni Fund through your congregation. The goal is increased, not re-directed, giving.

Weekend on developmentally disabled

On October 21-23 (Thursday through Saturday) the Center for Discipleship and Mennonite Mental Health Services co-sponsored a workshop entitled "Dialogue on Moral and Theological Dimensions of 'Normalization' in Working with the Developmentally Disabled."

In recent years new insights have contributed greater awareness and sensitivity to those who work with mentally retarded and other developmentally disabled persons. Some attempts are being made to help the developmentally disabled to live lives that are as "normal" for them as possible. In the community of faith, however, a number of theological and moral issues are emerging that need attention.

This workshop attempted to bring together parents, professional service workers, pastors, seminarians, and theologians to wrestle with such issues as: What is a "person"? What basic "rights" do persons have? What is "normal" behavior?

Thirty invitees to discuss social justice

On Friday and Saturday, November 26-27, the Center for Discipleship is sponsoring a "Consultation on Social Change." About 30 persons - community ministers, Mennonite service agency administrators, and Mennonite college social work faculty members—are being invited.

Several basic questions will be dealt with: Are we committed to social justice? What needs to be done to carry out social justice concerns? What inhibits the implementation of our commitment? What are the potentials for and limits to structural change? Can we (how do we) train for social justice?

The consultation is the first step in a process to enable the colleges and service agencies to work more closely together.

OCTOBER 1976

The role of alumni in the Alumni Association

By Alice M. Roth '57, executive secretary, Alumni Association of Goshen College

Alice Roth, director of alumni relations, is an ex officio member of the Alumni Association board.

An unprecedented number of alumni — 1,361 in all — cast votes in the balloting for the new Alumni Association Board members announced in this issue. Along with this, some 55 of you wrote suggestions for a strong Alumni Association.

About 500 of you visited the campus for Alumni Weekend. In the work of the Alumni Board and its committees, and in many informal conversations, the business of the Alumni Association moved forward.

What is the business of the Alumni Association?

Its function relates to communication — the flow of ideas, words, people, money — between that spot in Northern Indiana and the 14,000 spots around the world that are now occupied by GC alumni.

As director of alumni relations in the alumni communication funnel, I hope for your participation in these goals for the 1976-77 year:

* Plan for area GC meetings in 18 communities, including three areas that have not previously had such an event. If you live in an area that has not had GC meetings, let us know if there is interest.

* Generate more discussion by and between alumni in the newsletter editions of the Bulletin. Who can write a "My Turn" type column (Newsweek) with statements of opinion and position on current issues?

* Involve 1,000 more alumni in the Annual Fund this year. Last year 3,511 of the 14,000 alumni participated.

One alumna asked this week that her name be removed from the fund mailing list. "Have you considered the amount of money involved in soliciting donations?" she asks. "If I ever . . . contribute money it would be because I sincerely wanted to and not out of some guilt-evoking letter from the alumni association." I'm glad she wrote. Indeed we have spent a lot of time considering the cost of soliciting donations! What are the alternatives? We welcome suggestions.

* Plan one or two new continuing education opportunities for alumni, in addition to the events presently offered (see page 3). These might include a one-week "alumni college" on campus, planned for families (how many of you could come?) or a weekend art seminar on the east coast.

* Respond to specific alumni needs. For example, an alumnus in a non-Mennonite area asks how he can get information about GC choir tour schedules in time to take in such events in a Mennonite community 50 miles from him. We want to help him get that information.

* Expand coverage of news and personal notes about alumni. The alumni family gives high readership and attention to the items about important events in your life when you report them to us for the Bulletin.

One of the real joys of the work is being a part of the congenial two-way relationship between the campus and its faculty and students, and the alumni. The enthusiasm by both groups for an effective Alumni Association is heartening!

Two families send 20 sons and daughters to GC

Two families haven't consciously "vied" for the greatest number of children at GC. But it almost appears that way.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nafziger of Archbold, Ohio, have 12 children.

Mrs. John Kaufmann, of Tiskilwa, IL, who attended GC 1938-40, and the late Mr. Kaufmann, who also attended 1938-40, also have 12 children.

Both sets of children like Goshen College. Although more of the Kaufmann children have attended Goshen College, Nafzigers have had children at GC over a longer period of time.

Since Janice Nafziger attended Goshen College 1957-60 and 1963, eight of her brothers and sisters have followed suit: Rachel (now Lindsay) 1958-62; Rhoda (now Schrag) 1959-63; Ralph 1963-65; Ellis 1965-69; Emerson, 1969-71; Verlin, 1970-74; and twins Robert, 1973-76 and Roger, 1973- . John, a junior in high school, is seriously considering GC.

Ruth Ann Kaufmann (now Sexton) set the pace 1959-62 for Ilene (now Brown) 1960-64; John Jr., 1962-66; Liz (now Scott), 1964-68; H. James, 1965-69; Rachel, 1967-71; Christine, 1970-74; Lois (now Kaufmann-Hunsberger), 1971-76; Peter, 1973-75; and twins Phillip, 1976- , and Phyllis, 1976-

High school junior Paul is a prospective student.

The Nafziger and Kaufmann families had known of each other prior to their years in college — Mrs. Kaufmann and Mr. Nafziger are first cousins. The ages of children in each family closely match, and each family had a set of twins before the final child.

The children of both families were encouraged to attend the college of their choice. Some had seriously considered options other than Goshen. But, except for Charles and Joe Nafziger and the two high school juniors, all have attended at least one year at GC.

The Earl Nafzigers have had a son or daughter at Goshen every year since 1957. Kaufmanns have had a son or daughter at Goshen College every year, except 1975, since 1959. The most children either family has had in the college at one time have been three.

Members from both families agree on three reasons for attending GC: its proximity, its relation to the church, and its familiarity. Younger children have heard news about Goshen and visited its campus since early childhood.

Summing it up is a remark by GC freshman Phyllis Kaufmann: "Ever since I was small, the college has been a part of me."

His lecture, available January 1977, will be on the theme of integrity in language, communication and human relations. Dan is also writing a lesson series for Mennonite Publishing House on the same theme.

Stanley Grove '65, biology faculty member since 1975, has a chapter on "Form and Function in Zygomycete Spores" in The Fungal Spore, by Weber and Hess, printed by John Wiley, 1976. Stan is presently writing another chapter on "The Cytology of Hyphal Tip Growth" for Smith and Berry, The Filamentous Fungi, Vol. III, Fungal Development, published by Edward Arnold, Glasgow, Scotland.

J. R. Burkholder '52, religion faculty member since 1963, is co-editor of a festschrift titled Cross, Kingdom, and Community in honor of the 80th birthday of G.F. Hershberger, professor emeritus of history. The volume to be published in December includes in its essays pieces by C. Norman Kraus, Theron Schlabach, John A. Lapp, J. Lawrence Burkholder and the co-editors, J. R. Burkholder and Calvin W. Redekop '49.

Faculty leaves and terminations becoming effective last summer or early fall include: Anna Mae Charles '51 Fretz, nursing faculty member 1952-76, who has moved to Vineland, Ont.; Ida Gross '63, nursing faculty member since 1962, to Freeman, SD, to care for parents; Berdene Wyse '60, physical education faculty member, 1965-76, who has moved to Tampa, Florida; David Shank '48, campus ministries staff 1974-76, a student at University of Aberdeen, Scotland; George Smucker '60, social work faculty member 1967-69, 1972-76, to director of research at Oaklawn Center, Elkhart, IN; and Nick Lindsay, English faculty member since 1969, a year on Edisto Island, South Carolina.

Continuing education possibilities for alumni

Two courses in Ireland

Over the past several years, while Goshen students in Ireland have enjoyed its lovely countryside, friendly people, and life-savoring pace, they have also been aware of darker currents. Not only the present terrorism and intimidation in Northern Ireland but a common history of political-religious-economic manipulation, civil strife, and painful searching for national identity weighs on the consciousness of all people throughout the island.

This year two professors propose learning in at least some measure what Ireland has to teach about some seemingly intractible dilemmas of social conflict. Two courses on location in Ireland will be conducted conjointly by Profs. Atlee Beechy '35 and John Fisher '48: Psychology/Peace Studies 303 — Violence and Nonviolence and English 305 — Literature and Society: Ireland. The dates are June 13 to July 1.

The Glencree Peace and Reconciliation Centre, undergoing restoration by volunteers from a variety of nations, will be GC's campus in Ireland in summer, 1977. (Sketch by Linda Hershberger.)

They invite alumni to join with students in exploring how these reflective, integrative disciplines of human understanding may shed light on what are ultimately mysteries of the mind and heart. Although the whole group will share a common life at a center in southern Ireland, maximum interchange with a wide variety of knowledgeable Irish spokesmen as well as field excursions by bicycle or public transportation will be arranged.

More information, cost and other details are available from Office of the Dean.

Middle East Bible Seminar

The third Middle East Bible Seminar will take place May 20 to June 11, 1977. The seminar group, under the direction of Dr. Stanley C. Shenk '44, will study the geography, history, and archaeology of Palestine with the major purpose of understanding the Bible more clearly. A secondary purpose involves an attempt to analyze elements of the present complex scene in the Middle East.

The seminar will meet in Eastern Pennsylvania on May 20 for a two-day orientation. The group will leave New York on May 22 and arrive in Amman, Jordan, the following day. During the stay in Jordan there will be visits to Petra, Jerash, and the Jordanian side of the Jordan Valley.

The group will cross the Jordan to the Occupied West Bank on May 27. Headquarters from May 27 until the morning of June 4 will be Christ Church Hostel, just inside the Jaffa Gate, in Old Jerusalem. During this time there will be visits to the Old City of Jerusalem, Bethany, Nebi Samwill, Bethel, Ai, Bethlehem, Jericho, Qumran, Engedi, Masada, Sodom, Beersheba, Hebron, Yad Vashem, The Knesset, and the Chagall Windows at Hadassah. Opportunity will be given to any who wish to take a one-day extra-cost air trip to Saint Catherine's Monastery deep in the Sinai Peninsula.

During the following seven days there will be visits to Lachish, Tell el Hesi, Ashdod, the Forest of the Martyrs, Jacob's Well, Samaria, Nazareth, Mt. Tabor, Kibbutz Lavi (an Orthodox kibbutz), the Sea of Galilee, Capernaum, Hazor, Metulla, Dan, Megiddo, Haifa, Caesarea, and Tel Aviv.

The return flight to New York will be on June 11.

All alumni are welcome to join the group. More information, cost and other details are available from the Office of the Dean.

Major issues in England

Communication and Contemporary Issues of English, planned for London July 7-29, 1977, for three or four hours of credit, will focus on the major issues of England today and the manner in which the English people talk and write about these issues. Students will also study communication theory and write three papers, each four or five pages long. The sources for this study will be the parliamentary debates in the House of Commons; TV and radio newscasts, panel-interview programs, discussions, and documentaries; newspaper editorials and feature stories; and Hyde Park orators. Dr. Alfred J. Albrecht '50 will lead the group.

More information on cost and other details are available from the Office of the Dean.

Three weeks in East Africa

The course, Sociology 340 — African Societies and Cultures, will be taught in Africa instead of on campus June 12 to July 2, 1977. It will include two weeks in Nairobi, Kenya, and three days each in Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania, and Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

The objectives are: to see some of the striking social changes occurring as African peoples move from rural, traditional cultures to modern, independent nationhood. To visit large metropolitan centers, remote villages, African homes, mission and voluntary service locations, museums, markets, game parks, and tropical landscapes from rainforests to semi-desert. To meet Africans personally and hear them tell about their schools, churches, governments, economic development, and aspirations for the future.

Any alumnus or friend of Goshen College is cordially

* Ireland
* Middle East
* England
* East Africa
* Italy

invited to enroll either for credit or audit. To receive credit, participants must meet college admission standards, but there are no prerequisites for auditing.

The cost will be $510 to cover tuition, lodging and full board in Africa, guest lecturers, transportation for local field trips, and entrance fees to museums and game parks. In addition, the participant will need to arrange and pay round trip travel to Africa. Further information and counsel on the most economical travel options to Africa will be provided.

Tour leader will be J. Howard Kauffman '47, professor of sociology and department chairman. He has studied, taught, and traveled in 16 African countries.

More information and application forms are available from Office of the Dean or the tour leader.

Art in Florence

Two courses — Art 301 — Art Study Tour: Florence, May 19-June 8, 1977, and Art 330 — Media Workshop: Drawing, Watercolor, or Painting, June 9-29, 1977 — are open to alumni.

The purpose of Art Study Tour: Florence is to gain first hand experience with masterworks of ancient through modern cultures in their original settings. Tours will include visits to the Uffizi Galleria, Pitti Palazzo, Duomo, Palazzo del Bargello and Museo, and many other centers of interest. The Florentine Renaissance will be stressed and the works of Leonardo, Michelangelo, Ghiberti, Botticelli, Donatello and many others, may be viewed in their original setting.

The format includes guided tours to churches, palaces and museums with periodic lectures, daily group discussions and readings. A journal kept by each student will serve as a record of facts, impressions and anecdotes.

Media Workshop: Drawing, Watercolor, or Painting will provide opportunity for individual development in a two-dimensional medium based in the rich, historic environment of Florence. Structured studio sessions will include group discussions and critiques, as well as individual instruction on technical and aesthetic problems. Students must supply materials. All necessary items may be obtained on location; however, such items as sketch-books, watercolor sets, paint tubes and brushes can be taken along.

Both courses will be conducted by Abner Hershberger '60, professor of art, who is located in Italy during his sabbatical leave from Goshen College.

Costs are $490 per course, which covers tuition, room and board or $980 for two courses. The student is responsible for the cost and arrangement of transportation to Florence. Information on special fares is available and help will be offered to make transportation arrangements.

Applications are to be submitted on or before Feb. 1, 1977, along with a deposit of $50 per course, non-refundable.

More information, details and application forms are available from Office of the Dean.

Alumni weekend set for '77

The dates for Alumni Weekend, 1977, have been set for Friday through Sunday, Oct. 7-9, 1977.

The executive board of the Alumni Association acted to make the second weekend of October the regular time for the special annual alumni festivities.

In other board business transacted on Oct. 9, Alumni Day 1976, John E. Yoder '66 and Nancy Eash Myers '65 were named to the fund committee, and Mary Ruth Mishler '47 and Francis W. Smucker '41 were named to the alumni relations committee.

Appreciation was expressed to Ivan Beyeler '68, Donald J. Liechty '41, Vernon D. Miller '37, Emma Sommers Richards '49 and Susan K. Shank '67, all of whom had served on the board for two years.

New members seated on the board for two-year terms following last summer's balloting were:

Dorothy Mann Horst '48,
Tiskilwa, IL . . . . . Term expires 1978
Mary Ruth Mishler '47, Shipshewana, IN 1978
Nancy Eash Myers '65, Chicago, IL 1978
Francis W. Smucker '41, Orrville, OH 1978
John E. Yoder '66, Bryan, OH 1978

Continuing members on the board and their terms are:

Leanne Fricke Schertz '58, president, Peoria, IL . . . . . Term expires 1979
Stanley W. Boyer '58, president-elect, Madison, WI 1981
Harold Oyer '42,
past president, Sewickley, PA 1977
Mario Bustos Jr. '73, New Carlisle, IN 1977
Miriam Stalter Charles '41, Goshen, IN 1977
Joe D. Yoder '52, West Jefferson, OH 1977
Paton Yoder '35, Canton, OH 1977
Alice Metzler Roth '57, as director of alumni relations, serves ex officio on the board as executive secretary.

Fund progress

As the Bulletin went to press on November 1, alumni giving to the 1977 Annual Fund for Quality Teaching stood at $37,992.68. The sum is the total of undesignated gifts from alumni for faculty and staff salaries for the first four months of the current fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1976. (The comparable amount received in the first four months of the fiscal period a year ago was $42,725.81.) The goals for the Alumni Fund this year are $285,000 and 1,000 new or reactivated donors, to make alumni participation 32.6 percent of all alumni making a gift, up from 26.1 percent last year.

Olive G. Wyse lectureship fund now at $6210

As the Bulletin goes to press, the Olive G. Wyse Honor Lectureship Fund totals $6210.

The annual endowed lecture fund is in honor of Dr. Wyse '26, who retired last spring after teaching at Goshen College 50 years. At an alumnae brunch on Alumni Day, Oct. 9, her former students presented her with a friendship scrapbook of photographs, letters, and small handcrafts.

Two of the high lights of Dr. Wyse's career are: first woman in the Mennonite Church to be granted the doctor of education degree, (Columbia U., 1946), and first foods editor of Mennonite Community, the denomination's first magazine for home and family life.

The lectureship set up in her honor will feature teachers, researchers, practitioners, and other home economics professionals speaking on food and nutrition, clothing and textiles, child development and family relations, home management and consumer affairs, housing, home furnishings, education, and transcultural family studies.

Gifts to the lectureship fund are still being accepted. They should be clearly designated and should be considered a gift to Goshen College over and above one's annual gift for the Alumni Fund for Quality Teaching.

'You are invited to a GC meeting hosted by alumni in this area'

This invitation is part of the new look in the area meeting announcements this year.

The Alumni Relations Committee (of the Alumni Board) discussed the purpose of these meetings, and focused it this way: while the meetings are open to all friends of the college, especially pastors and parents of students, the programming will be planned primarily with alumni in mind. Meetings should allow for renewing acquaintances, updating from the college, input from a faculty person or students in their major academic area.

These dates have been set:

Southeast Iowa - Friday, Nov. 12, 6:30 p.m., Carry-in supper at East Union Mennonite Church Fellowship Hall, Kalona. Prof. Ervin Beck '59 will speak on "What's Happening to the English Language?" Coordinators are Mike '75 and Kris Brenneman '75 Brenneman and Myron '70 and Martha Yoder '70 Graber.

Holmes County, Ohio - Saturday, Dec. 11, 7:00 p.m., at Das Dutchman Restaurant, Walnut Creek. Colin Mishler '67, chair; James Mast '61, vice president; Becky Brubacher '68, secretary-treasurer.

Plans are underway in these areas, with 1977 dates to be confirmed:

Indiana
Elkhart — Jean Detwiler Mann '56, chair, with Paula Geiser Gerber '68 and Peter R. C. Classen '51.
Fort Wayne — Coordinator to be named.

Illinois
Chicago — May or June meeting anticipated.
Northern — Mary Helen Yoder Wade '44, coordinator, with David Ebersole '38.
Central — Richard Crockett '70, chair, with Joyce Eigsti Hofer '53, Mae Orendorff Imhoff '39, and Maurice J. Yordy '52.

Ohio
Wayne County — David '63 and Geneva Steiner '60 Smucker, chair, with Milton '61 and Ann Sommer '60 Troyer and Ralph Rheinheimer '60.
Cleveland — Elizabeth Miller Broaddus '70, coordinator. Early June picnic planned.
Northwestern — Edward Diener '43, chair, with Elwood Graber '50, Cara Frey Ulrich '55 and Helen Eicher Weldy '55.
Southwestern — Mary Byler Classen '45 and Glenda Frey Mast '56.
Youngstown — Greg Bowman '74, coordinator.

Pennsylvania
Eastern — Mike Lambright '68, chair, with Sarah Eby '71, Ada Mast Hallman '63, and Jeanette Eicher Rice '71.
Western — Richard Kauffman '68, coordinator.

New York
Upstate — Sanford '72 and Gay Hunsberger '71 Lehman, Charles and Claramae Lehman '52 Klink, contact persons.

Washington, D.C.-Baltimore — Anne Quiring Miller '60, contact person, until coordinator is named.

Discussion is underway concerning the possibility of GC area meetings in Indianapolis and South Bend, Indiana; New York City (perhaps an art seminar); and Ontario. During his months of sabbatical study, January through June 1977, President Burkholder will be meeting with alumni in some of the western states.

Medical team needs personnel in rural area

By Robert Mullet '67

The path between dream and reality is often long, and difficult to travel, but for several concerned medical people, what began as a dream four years ago has now blossomed into a tangible, viable group medical practice.

For Dr. Wallace '60 and Evie Kauffman '63 Shellenberger, Dr. Terry '67 and Mary Liechty '68 Nofziger, and Dr. Richard and Marge Graber, planning first began in 1972 when they became acquainted at the First Mennonite Church in Indianapolis. They discovered a common interest in some day practicing in a medically needy, rural area. And they were all committed to the concept of a comprehensive health care delivery system. They felt that such a practice must include a full range of services — education, screening, emergency services — as well as traditional in-patient and out-patient care.

The group's attention was soon focused on Orange County in southern Indiana, an area that already had a shortage of physicians, and would have several more retiring from practice in the next few years. In August, 1974, the Shellenbergers and Nofzigers moved to Paoli, county seat of Orange County, to begin to develop their dream.

Two years later the progress that has been made is little short of astounding. A modern clinic building has been built, primarily through the efforts of the physicians, next to the Orange County hospital. During August of this year, an average of 70 patients per working day were treated at the clinic. In addition, the group practice operates another clinic in Crawford County, to the south of Orange County, an area with 8,000 population that has no physician other than the group practice clinic. Based on current growth and the 25,000 population of the two-county area, the group expects to average about 180 patient visits per working day at the end of three years. The staff currently consists of two physicians who are board certified in family practice (Nofziger and Graber), a board certified psychiatrist (Shellenberger), and three family nurse practitioners (Mrs. Shellenberger, Jan Kropf '68 — both former GC nursing profs — and Rosie Eash '72 Kauffman). A third M.D. with family practice residency will join the group in November, but there will be need for two more family practitioners in the next three years.

There is also an acute need for expansion into the areas of general surgery and dentistry. Facilities are available for opening a dental office in the same clinic building, and an additional exam area is available for a surgeon. All that is lacking are persons with similar vision who would like to join such a group.

Although not directly medically related, no description of the group practice is complete without mention of the Paoli Mennonite Fellowship. Starting with a group of seven members, this house fellowship has grown to more than 20. The growth has made it necessary to subdivide into smaller support groups which meet during the week with a corporate worship experience being held on Sunday evenings. Pastoral leadership is a shared responsibility of all members, with no single person playing the traditional role of pastor.

The concept of operating by consensus is a common element of both the house fellowship and the medical practice.

Persons who would be interested in having more information about the group, or would know of persons who might be able to fill the personnel needs are welcome to write to Robert Mullet, Comprehensive Health Care, Hospital Road, Paoli, IN 47454.

Alumni wrote it

Since I've been doing more thinking in retrospect now than before Oct. 9 I realize how much that "Culture for Service" in front of the chapel that permeated our lives continued to always do so.

The innumerable ways one serves, directly and indirectly, in vocation, avocation, fellowship, church, school or community and family are not measurable.

We thank God for the service, however rendered, in each life present there.

Mildred Hostetler Hartzler '36
Elkhart, IN

We are grateful to God for the education which we received at Goshen College and the Seminary. I think one of the things which I treasure the greatest from my experiences at Goshen College has been the personal relationships which we were able to develop with the faculty while we were students there and what these have meant to us over the years.

Donald E. '53 and Bonnie Lou Miller '55 Yoder
Tempe, AZ

Lois and I are forever grateful to Goshen College for the privilege of participating in the educational experience of Goshen College. Even though neither of us is in our chosen profession of teaching, the education we received has helped us in our own business, as well as relating to the church here in Slave Lake. We praise God for Goshen College and its forward looking attitude. How we need well-trained and committed disciples of Christ.

Publications available for $5 or less

The Word with Us in All Things

The Pinchpenny Press publication, The Word with Us in All Things, containing poems and short stories from the 1975 Mennonite Writers' Conference at Goshen College, is now on sale.

Allan Dueck, formerly a graduate assistant in English at GC and currently instructor at Hesston College, selected and edited the work of 29 contributors.

The 47-page publication represents some of the best writing resulting from the conference, held in early 1975 at GC.

Guest speakers whose works are in the book include Dolores Frese, Urie Bender and Nick Lindsay. Other contributors are registrants at the conference and represent a full range of occupations, ages, and geographic locations.

The cost is $2 postpaid.

Mennonite Artists Contemporary

Mennonite Artists Contemporary 1975 contains information representing 54 living artists who are present or past Mennonites. An example of each artist's work is shown. Several of the artists are Goshen College alumni and faculty.

Mennonite Artists Contemporary makes an attractive addition to any home or church library and would be an excellent gift for the young person with art interests.

The book has an embossed white cover and is $5 postpaid.

Hymn Preludes for the Mennonite Hymnal

Hymn Preludes for the Mennonite Hymnal, 1969, contains 28 preludes by composers acquainted with the Mennonite Church, including Charles Burkhart, J. Harold Moyer and Alice Parker. The preludes are based on tunes found in the Mennonite Hymnal.

The book is plastic bound for easy use at organ (or piano) and is $3.50 postpaid.

Festival Song Book

Festival of the Word Song Book, from the April, 1974, Festival is available at $1.35 postpaid. ($1.10 a copy for five copies or more.)

The book contains 40 songs, among them tunes from earlier festivals and 12 songs composed especially for the 1974 fete.

A memorial that lives on and on

So often and for so many, the emotion of the occasion can overrule better judgment. Before you decide on an appropriate memorial, we suggest that you explore first. A time-honored choice is a gift that serves persons or a worthy cause.

The true measure of a Christian memorial is that it shall do Christian work. One idea for a memorial gift is a book (or books) for the Good Library at Goshen College.

The name of the person you honor and your name will appear on a specially designed bookplate as a permanent thanksgiving. Further, there will be recognition in the Bulletin.

The effect of a memorial gift is something beyond the ordinary. It honors the person not just for a moment but for years to come. The book (or books) in the Good Library will be there for daily use by students and faculty. Long after your gift is made, the gift is benefitting students and teachers who will be serving mankind far into the future.
